Sen. Bridges Asks Congress to Study Foreign Aid Picture in Light of Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R-Kan.) said today that Congress ought to "reappraise the whole foreign aid picture in the light of the current world situation," particularly the Indochina crisis.

Bridges, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, made the statement to newsmen at a conference with President Eisenhower.

He said, however, that he did not discuss foreign aid or the situation in Indochina with Eisenhower in any detail.

Earlier Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) had said that any effort by Congress to use foreign aid to pressure Britain and France into a united front against communism in southeast Asia would be boomerang.

"It would play right into the Kremlin's hands," Humphrey said in an interview. "It would be just like cutting off your nose to spite your face."

Bridges said Secretary of State Dulles had cancelled a scheduled appearance before the Senate Appropriations Committee this afternoon because of the secretary's plans to fly to London and Paris to appeal to the British and French for support of his program of "united action" against any new Communist aggression in southeast Asia.

The State Department said yesterday that Dulles was considering such a trip.

In a last minute switch of plans, Dulles was reported to have decided to leave Saturday instead of Sunday on his mission. The earlier departure would enable him to begin his talks with British leaders Sunday and his discussions with the French Tuesday.

Bridges said it was his understanding that Dulles feels he would be in a better position to talk to the committee after consulting with the British and the French.

The senator said his conference with the President dealt generally with the budget situation and timing for various appropriation bills.

In response to a question, Bridges said he and Eisenhower touched only generally on the situation in Indochina in talking about the broad picture of federal spending.

Asked for his own views on Indochina, Bridges said he first wanted to make it clear that what he would say in no way reflected his conversation with the President.

Then he called for "a reappraisal of the whole Foreign Aid picture in the light of the current world situation, and the willingness of our allies to cooperate."

He stressed that he was talking about cooperative "action and not mere words."

Bridges said the American program of foreign aid should be continued, but that the emphasis in the future should be "on the more critical situations" and that aid should be channeled to nations willing to help themselves.

Bridges noted a statement yesterday by Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, suggesting that Congress should wait until after the Geneva conference on Asia, starting April 28, before deciding how much foreign aid to provide North Atlantic Treaty countries.

Knowland said Congress ought to follow such a course inasmuch as some European allies have been urging delay on Dulles' "united action" proposals until after the Geneva conference.

Bridges said he believes Knowland "struck a note that met a responsive chord" so far as "a large group in the Senate of both political parties" is concerned.

Bridges commented that the U. S. foreign aid program is described as a mutual assistance program, and added that the emphasis should be on the word "mutual."

British and French diplomats are reported disinclined to go along with the U. S. proposal for a united front in southeast Asia until they see what comes out of the Geneva meeting with representatives of Red China and Russia.

Air Force Academy Commission Starts Tour of 400 Sites Proposed for School

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force Academy Commission today started a tour of some of the 400 sites that have been proposed for the new air force school.

The five-man group headed first for Orlando, Fla., but did not disclose its itinerary beyond that point.

Some of the proposed locations will be viewed only from the air, but the Air Force said the commission already has the benefit of technical studies describing most of the proposed locations.

The commission said it will not accept invitations to dinners or other entertainment functions during the inspection trip and that no opinion as to the relative attractiveness of any of the sites will be expressed.

After completion of the tour the commission will review additional proposals for sites that may be received before the April 21 deadline.

The State Geologist Tells How Really Bad Drought Is In Mo.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—The water situation in drought-stricken Missouri is "pretty damn tough" in the view of State Geologist Edward L. Clark.

Dr. Clark told a Mid-Century Resource Conference today conservation practices for wise use of water must be put into effect soon or it will be a case of "too little too late."

"Much of the difficulty we're facing now," he said, "is man made, through man's negligence."

Dr. Clark held out the hope present water shortages caused by the drought may wake up many areas to the problem and result in new controls.

For one thing, he said, water used for air conditioning should not be dumped as waste but should be cooled and re-used.

"Some areas are becoming so critical that controls are recommended on the drilling of additional wells. It may be desirable to allocate the amounts that may be pumped in such areas."

Dr. Clark noted a big increase in use of large wells to supply irrigation water in the last two years. If this trend continues, he said, "there is a foreseeable possibility of an acute ground water shortage in local areas."

The meeting was sponsored by the Conservation Federation of Missouri, which has advocated immediate legislation on water use.

Dr. Clark, however, said much more factual data on underground water supplies must be compiled before sound legislation can be drafted.

Some federation members also have advocated a system of small watershed projects as a solution of water conservation problems.

But Brig. Gen. W. E. Potter, Missouri River division engineer for the corps of engineers, said that even if every justified small watershed dam were built, the Missouri and other major rivers "would continue to be wild and unmanageable streams in times of heavy rainfall."

Small watershed projects, he said in a prepared speech, "are not a substitute for major flood control, nor for drought control, and they should not be offered as a cure-all."

Potter is in general charge of the engineers' part of the huge Pick-Sloan plan for Missouri Basin development. He divided the downstream states of Missouri and Kansas for "juggling behind" in their part of the program and cited the

'Violent' Vietminh Assault

Commies Unleash Bombardment Upon Dien Bien Phu. Begin New Battle

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—The Communist-led Vietminh unleashed a "violent" artillery bombardment on Dien Bien Phu today in what might be a prelude to a new infantry assault on the besieged French fortress in northwest Indochina.

A French communique said the defenders answered back with tremendous barrages as the rebels rained down thousands of shells from their 105 and 155mm. artillery and heavy mortars in the hills encircling the French-held plain.

Such artillery steps have heretofore been the Vietminh's two previous attempts to overrun the fortress, a two-day wave of assaults beginning March 13 and six days of repeated attacks on various corners of the plain's defenses which ended last Monday.

Some French army sources, however, still believed the Vietminh renewal would not come for another "four or five days."

The artillery duel started after the French had reported the last of the Dien Bien Phu area had continued through its fourth successive night.

The French defenders and their rebel besiegers were using the "calm" to intensify their feverish buildup of men and supplies for the expected showdown "Battle of Geneva."

It was clear the Vietminh would have to strike soon, however, if they hope to win a big victory before the East-West conference on Asia opens in Geneva April 26.

Further south in Indochina, King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia ordered general mobilization in his kingdom and announced he would appeal to the United Nations against Vietminh aggression there.

About two battalions of Vietminh crossed into Cambodia from Laos eight days ago. So far, only scattered actions have been reported in the vicinity of the Laos-Cambodia border.

"These destructive forces of nature can be greatly minimized by soundly engineered and constructed works in which reservoir storage must play a major role."

W. S. Culeppier of Columbia, state conservation engineer for the Soil Conservation Service, told of progress on two "pilot" watershed treatment projects in Johnson and Lincoln counties.

He said it was unfortunate that Missouri's soil conservation district act does not permit districts to be organized on a watershed basis.

The absentee votes of the city election were counted this morning in the office of City Clerk Fred Handley, but the results had no effect on the outcome of the election. There were 337 votes cast by absentee ballot and more were cast by Republicans than Democrats.

The results: for mayor, Julian H. Bagby (D) 140; for city clerk, Edgar Neighbors (D) 145; Ralph Hamilton (R) 192; for collector, Paul Albert (D) 156; for police magistrate, Judge R. L. Weingacht (D) 139; H. O. Berry (R) 145; for city assessor, John M. Blue (D) 141; Harry Spillers (R) 194; for city treasurer, Mrs. Clyde Brown (D) 142; Mrs. Cleo Schumacher (R) 186; city councilman first ward, Harry Moore (D) 23; Ed Kehde Jr. (R) 40; second ward, Roland "Doc" Snively (D) 11; Norman Boytcher (R) 28; third ward, Dr. Ira White (D) 47; Ira Smith (R) 72; fourth ward, Carleton Kelley (D) 57; Jack Cunningham (R) 59.

The absentee ballots were counted by the following judges of the election: Democrats, W. C. Askew, Max Bailey, Mrs. D. Kelly by Scruton; Republicans, Mike Bogutski, W. D. Smith and Willis Fabas.

The official count will be conducted by City Clerk Handley and Mayor Elmer Summers.

Hardin's statement said they had stolen pistols, rifles, ammunition, cash, clothing, food, electrical appliances and such items as cigarettes, lighters, flashlights and liquor.

Prosecutor Mittendorf Friday filed charges of burglary and larceny in one robbery, that of the Marie Morley's store at Fayetteville, near Warrensburg. The reason for filing in connection with this robbery was that items taken from there were recovered and later identified.

Knob Noster residents will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a proposed $14,000 bond issue for the construction of a sanitary sewer system. The polling places will be located at Baker's Cleaning Shop in the east ward and at the Victory Theater in the west ward. They will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Asks Law on Commies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) asked Congress today to declare by law that Communists, by maintaining Communist fronts, voluntarily sacrifice their U. S. citizenship.

WINN PHARMACEUTICAL POST—A. B. Warren, manager of the Main Street Cut Rate Drug Store, 101 West Main, was elected president of the American Animal Health Pharmaceutical Association at its fifth annual convention and seminar at Lexington, Ky., April 4-6. He succeeds Dr. E. Dittich, former dean of the College of Pharmacy, Kansas City. President-elect is J. Leo McMahon, editor and publisher of "Western Druggist" and "Animal's Healthmate." Vice-president is O. J. Clousch, president of the St. Louis Wholesale Drug Co. The Association has about 640 members in 42 states and Canada. Also attending were Mrs. Warren, on the entertainment committee for the ladies program, and Robert Wilson, former Sedalia and now a salesman for Wyeth, Inc., a pharmaceutical house.

In answer to a question about his earlier statement, the former President said:

"The text of the 1943 agreement between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt upon the atomic bomb and atomic energy was published on April sixth, 1954 by authorization of the President."

"The second paragraph of this agreement provided:

"We will not use it—that is the atomic bomb—against a third party without each other's consent."

In reply to another question as to whether the agreement had been changed, Truman said:

"In 1947 a new agreement was negotiated with the British through Under Secretary Lovett at my direction. This new agreement went into effect January 1, 1948. Among other things it abrogated the restriction on the use of the atomic bomb referred to above."

The former President reiterated his statement earlier this week that there was no delay in the development of the hydrogen bomb as charged by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) last Monday night.

"There was a strong division of opinion among the top scientists charged with the project as to the 'workability of the bomb,'" he said.

"I wanted to get the benefit of all scientific opinions. Then I had to knock some heads together to order the project to go ahead."

Truman was in a jovial mood as he faced TV and newsreel cameramen.

Other officers installed were: Robert Hare, first vice-president; Verrell Martin, second vice-president; Robert J. Ruffuth, secretary; Robert Houghen, treasurer; and Charles Wendt, immediate past president.

The installing officer was Jerome S. Metzger, Kansas City, national director of the Missouri State Junior Chamber of Commerce, who told the group the main purpose of the organization is to help the city through civic improvement and building leaders.

In his response, Bogutski brought to the attention of the Jaycees that the new officers are also new members and that, he said, is good because it takes new men with new ideas to go forward.

He said there were many plans being made for activities for the year in which he needed the cooperation and hard work of the entire membership.

Mr. Bogutski then presented to Charles Wendt, the retiring president, the past president's pin.

Toastmaster for the evening was Gene Kent, who introduced the guest speaker, Col. Harold Leitz, director of operations, Sedalia Air Force Base.

Col. Leitz, who has been at the base only a short time having come here from Greenland where he had been stationed, gave a most interesting and informative talk on the mission and operation of the Strategic Air Command. His talk was based on questions he had been asked previously and he explained various things about SAC that he felt people would like to know. He also asked for questions and answered them in a very satisfactory manner.

The meeting opened with invocation by Royal Miller.

Group singing was led by Bob Wall with Judy Case at the piano.

Fourteen members of the Sedalia Junior Chamber of Commerce were presented spark plug awards for the outstanding work they had done the past year.

The spark plug award is based on points and the points must combine several of the various fields in Jaycee work. Charles Wendt, outgoing president, presented the awards and failed to mention that he, too, received such an award, but someone at the speaker's table noticed that there was an award there with Wendt's name on it and announced it. WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today voted the Agriculture Department more funds than it requested for next year, but accused Secretary Benson of a "breach of faith" with Congress.

The committee sent to the House floor for debate next Monday a bill to increase the department's fiscal year 1955 appropriation by $88,741,613 in cash and $320,500,000 in loan authority for the department for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

This is the exact amount of cash the department requested through the Budget Bureau, but the contract authority is 45 million dollars more than had been sought. The new cash is about 56 millions less than the department received this year, while the loan authorization is 64 millions less.

The committee authorized the entire 250 millions requested by the department for the 1955 crop year. Money to finance this authorization, which includes soil conservation subsidies, will be provided in next year's appropriation bill.

While allowing the department the amount of new cash it requested, the committee cut some of the projects in the overall farm program and recommended that the money thus saved go to the school lunch program.

It disagreed with the department's plan to cut the budgets of "action programs" and to shift emphasis to research and extension activities. The department had proposed cuts for the Forest Service, the crop insurance program, the Rural Electrification Administration, the Farmers Home Administration and the school lunch program, and for disease and pest control work.

Truman Alters Stand

Now Says Agreement On Use of A-bomb Was Later Abrogated By New Agreement

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman agreed today a 1948 Anglo-American agreement abrogated the restriction on use of atomic bombs provided in the original atomic agreement between the two nations.

He called a press conference this morning saying he had obtained data and names to refresh his memory since a statement he made Tuesday that the Anglo-American atomic agreement still was in effect. His statement was challenged by Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

In answer to a question about his earlier statement, the former President said:

"The text of the 1943 agreement between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt upon the atomic bomb and atomic energy was published on April sixth, 1954 by authorization of the President."

Jet Crash Bodies Located

Airliner Missing With 21 at Sea; Bodies and Debris Found by Searchers

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Navy craft searching for a British jet Comet airliner missing with 21 persons on a Rome-to-Cairo flight today reported finding several bodies and debris floating in the Mediterranean Sea.

The Italian navy corvette Ibis, part of a four-nation sea and air team, radioed headquarters here of the find. It said the bodies were being taken aboard. Three Americans were aboard the Comet.

The Americans were:

Clyde L. Anderson of American Fork, Utah, bound from London to Cairo.

Floyd R. Harbison of Pittsburg, Pa., a Westinghouse engineer on his way to Cairo to supervise repairs on a small power station.

Ray L. Wilkinson, 63, a manufacturer of Marblehead and Salem, Mass., en route to Livingston, Africa, on a combination business-pleasure trip.

A British plane was reported circling over the spot to mark it for the other searchers.

A long oil slick about 50 miles south of Capri drew attention at dawn. The pilot of a U. S. PBY flying boat, Lt. David Jones, reported sighting debris in that area this afternoon. Other debris was seen by a British airliner about 80 miles farther south, near the toe of the Italian boot.

The big jetliner disappeared after it left Rome early last night on a flight to Cairo.

For the second time in three months all Comets, pride of Britain's air transport industry, were grounded for investigation. Over Europe, Africa and Asia British airlines transferred their passengers to piston-engine aircraft.

A vast four-nation armada of planes and ships searched wide stretches of the Mediterranean.

The big oil slick a mile and a quarter long, sighted first by a U. S. Navy plane 30 miles due south of the Isle of Capri, was the first possible clue to the fate of the airliner.

In London, the stunned British government ordered a full inquiry. Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC), said: "We have got to do some very fundamental thinking about the Comet altogether."

Transport Minister Alan Lennox-Boyd, delaying a trip to Canada, told the hushed House of Commons the Comets were grounded "until more is known."

London newspapers speculated on the possibility of sabotage and drew parallels with the Jan. 10 crash of another Comet half an hour after it left Rome. There was no comment from BOAC or the government along this line.

The disappearance capped a day of tragedy for British Commonwealth aviation. A light Canadian military training plane collided in the air yesterday morning with a Trans-Canada Airlines passenger plane over Moose Jaw, Sask., killing 37 persons.

The missing Comet, owned by BOAC and chartered to South African Airways for a joint service between London and Johannesburg, took off last night from Rome's Ciampino Airport. It was due in Cairo an hour and 55 minutes later.

What to do about "Those Easter Ducks" has caused several readers to propose that Sedalians adopt a suggestion recently printed in Pathfinder Magazine, which reads:

"Those Easter Ducks. The fuzzy little ducklings that fond parents buy youngsters for Easter can become real problems when they grow up. Cushing, Okla., has come up with a neat solution: a few weeks after Easter, the whole quack 'n' caboodle are released in a city park pond, where they can be admired all summer. At Thanksgiving, the Salvation Army takes over and distributes duck dinners to the needy."

Maybe this is a quacker jack idea for the use of Liberty Park lake.

Recommended for careful reading and serious thought is a succession of articles on Sedalia's traffic problem prepared after more than a year of exhaustive study by the Chamber of Commerce Traffic Survey Committee. The first of these articles appeared in Thursday's Democrat and Friday's Herald. The next will appear in Sunday's issues of these newspapers.

The survey reveals the need for correction of Sedalia's traffic problem, one that cannot be solved without engineering analysis and an open-minded consideration by the public of what the facts point out.

The committee deserves much credit for coming up with such a fine report. Now comes public discussion and public opinion.

Traffic congestion in Sedalia is bad. Let's not have any mental congestion while considering the methods to alleviate this civic illness.

The public is cordially invited to attend this festival concert.

Accompanying as a special number, on the program will be a string trio from the sixth grade at Mark Twain School, composed of John Hausman, piano; Susie Ward, violin, and Bill Heiss, cello. They will play "Minuet" by Bach.

Pancake Day For CP Fund Here May 1

The first day of May will be another pancake day in Sedalia. This time the proceeds will be used for children of Pettis County who are not able to go to school, but for whom special schools, clinics and treatment must be provided to give them a chance in life—children with cerebral palsy.

Various organizations in Sedalia have become interested in these little youngsters and are trying to help their parents along with the program they have so bravely started, because they want their children to have a future, too, just like all other parents plan for their children.

The organizations sponsoring the pancake day are the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, and every bit of the money will be turned over to the Sedalia Chapter of the United Cerebral Palsy Association.

The pancakes will be served all day Saturday, May 1, at the building on West Second in the 100 block, where the Theatre is used to be located. The use of the building, which is owned by J. T. Ghosen, is being donated for the day by Mr. Ghosen.

At a meeting on Wednesday, April 7, of the Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and the United Cerebral Palsy Association, committees were appointed as follows: C. A. Bletherode, chairman; B. S. Hutchinson, George Laugen and E. H. Jett, from the Odd Fellows; Mrs. B. S. Hutchinson, chairman; Mrs. Gib Owen, Mrs. S. R. Merrill and Mrs. John Ellison, from the Rebekahs; Dan Jarvis, chairman; Mrs. George West and Mrs. May Moree, from the UCPA.

Working committees appointed were: publicity, Mrs. June Hancock, chairman; Pot Clark, Mrs. Earl Grady, Mrs. May Moree and Mrs. Byron Pilcher; ticket, Eldon Barnes, chairman; Mrs. Ruby James, Mrs. Raymond Rash, Mrs. E. H. Jett; entertainment, Mrs. Earl Grady and Mrs. Mae Moser. Serving will be by the Rebekahs and the UCPA women and the food preparation by the IOOF.

Publisher Indicted Over 'Mac' Article

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A federal grand jury has indicted a publisher on a charge of mailing copies of his newspaper containing an article on Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) which tended to "incite murder or assassination."

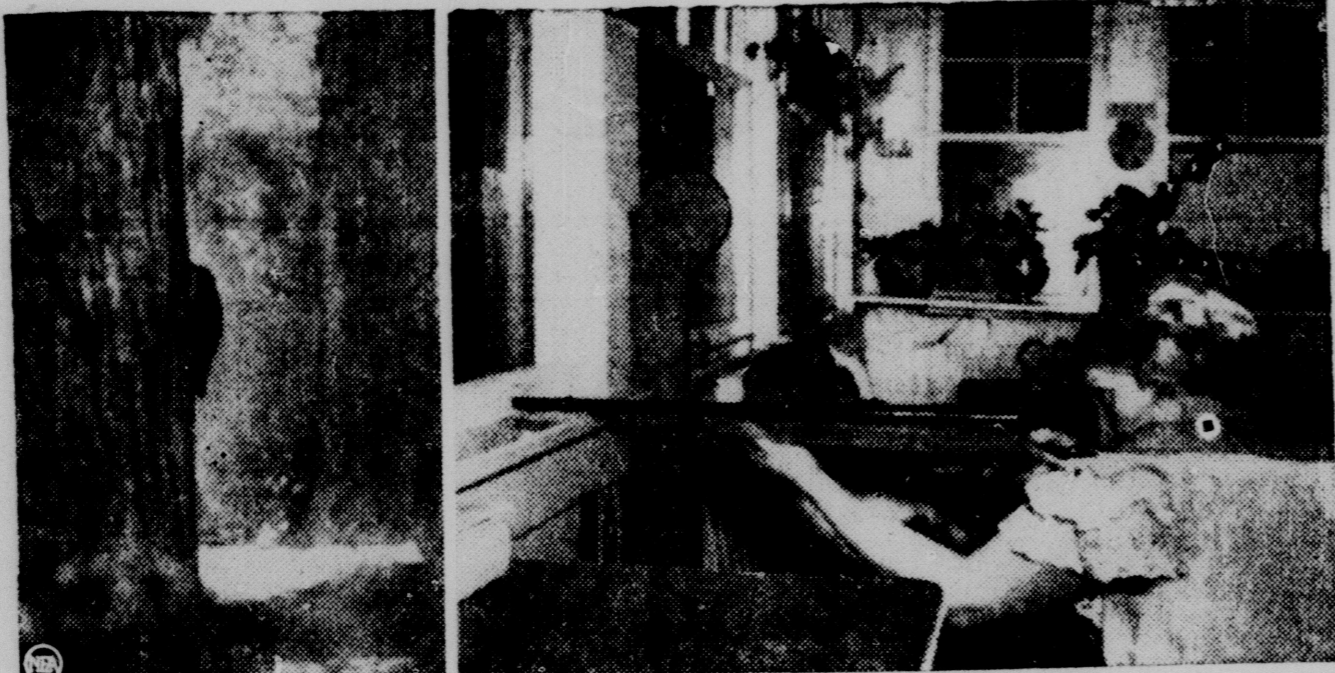

The true bill, announced yesterday by Federal Judge Roger T. Foley, contained a copy of a column L. M. Greenspan wrote in the Las Vegas Sun which said: "Sen. Joe McCarthy has to come to a violent end . . . But I would hate to see some simpleton get the chair for such a public service as getting rid of McCarthy."

The indictment alleged that Greenspan on Jan. 8, 1954, "deposited 874 morning Sun papers containing non-mailable matter."

Vote Results Change

BUTLER, Mo. (AP)—Recent election returns have been revised after a count of absentee ballots.

Charles Smith, Republican, was elected by a majority of 12 votes, according to first reports. The latest count shows Ross B. Williams, a Democrat, was reelected city marshal by a majority of 110 votes.

Ozark Playgrounds Members Told to Romance the Resorts

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Members of the Ozark Playgrounds Association were told they should romance their resorts to build tourist trade.

Dr. John T. Morris, director of a University of Oklahoma survey of the Arkansas-Missouri-Oklahoma recreation area, said yesterday an example was Oklahoma's Grand Lake.

There are 14 lakes in the United States with that name, he explained. The lake, which has the official title "Lake O' the Cherokees," should use the latter, a more fitting name, he asserted.

Morris predicted by 1959 the major industry of the Ozarks would be recreation which now is second only to cattle raising. His survey, made in conjunction with the National Park Service, showed the tourist business last year hit a new high of about 50 million dollars.

About 51 per cent of the tourist trade for the area comes from the three states, Morris said.

Retiring President Bryce Roby, Tulsa, said the association's 1954 advertising budget is $52,551. The group also is publishing a visitors guide book for the tri-state area.

After the one-day general session, officers were elected. They were:

Dwight Nichols, Eureka Springs, Ark., hotel manager, president; Flavius Freeman, Springfield, Mo., executive vice president; and George A. Spiva, Joplin, Mo., treasurer.

Three vice presidents also were elected. They are: Arkansas—E. T. Parker, Harrison; E. V. Morton, Winslow, and N. M. Looper, Arkansasville; Missouri—Harry Roberts, Joplin; Charles Boren, Branson, and Freeman; Oklahoma—Jim Tackett, Muskogee.

Seaman Is Given Treatment by Radio

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A seaman ill aboard a ship 3,000 miles from Miami received treatment prescribed by the U. S. Public Health Service here last night.

The Coast Guard received a message from the SS Jan. 100 miles off the coast of French West Africa, reporting that Paoli Antonio, 39, was ill with high fever and asking instructions for treatment.

Public Health Service medical advice was radioed to the vessel.

Man Returns From 'Dead' Visits Old Home

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Thomas C. Buntin, the man who returned from the "dead," made a dramatic surprise visit to Nashville yesterday, more than 20 years after he disappeared from his hometown.

He introduced himself as Tom Buntin to old friends, not as Thomas Palmer, the name by which he is known in Orange, Tex., where he has lived since he vanished from Nashville with his secretary, Betty McCuddy, in September 1931.

He was discovered there by the Nashville Tennessee last Thanksgiving Day living with his secretary, of Russellville, Ky., they are parents of six children.

Apparently the sudden visit caught many of the large Buntin family here by surprise. Buntin went to the home of his mother, Mrs. Dan C. Buntin, soon after his arrival.

Mother and son sat until late into the night talking. It was their first meeting since his disappearance.

He refused to talk to newsmen. An acquaintance, Charles Davitt, said Buntin dropped into his clothing store briefly.

"I knew him at once," Davitt said. Buntin "has just grown older—that's all."

Betty McCuddy apparently did not accompany Buntin here. The state Supreme Court declared Buntin dead in 1942. A Kentucky court had adjudged Mrs. McCuddy dead four years earlier.

Good Deed Backfires Wallet Is Missing

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—When he found some keys and a money order, W. Rosenkilde telephoned the man named on the money order. They met and the stranger profusely thanked Rosenkilde for returning his property.

Rosenkilde asked the police yesterday to help him meet the stranger again. Since their first meeting, he explained, he hasn't been able to find his wallet containing $220.

Fritzi Scheff Dies at 74

NEW YORK (AP)—Fritzi Scheff, who sparkled in opera and operetta from the turn of the century and whose blazing star never quite set, died yesterday at the age of 74.

The saucy, piquant luminary of another era—she made her stage debut in 1898—was active in the entertainment field until the very end. She had been appearing on television and radio, with future commitments, and even made a comeback four years ago at the old Palace Theater, where she last played 25 years before that.

The body of the little singer was found in her memento-crowded East Side apartment. A medical examiner attributed death to "old age and natural causes."

Vienna-born and a European star, Miss Scheff made her first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1901.

But it was as Fifi in Victor Herbert's "Mademoiselle Modiste" (1904) that she won the heart of the nation. Her first rendition of "Kiss Me Again" won 25 curtain calls and the fond nickname of "Kiss-Me-Again-Girl."

After opera and operetta, Miss Scheff turned to vaudeville with her usual flaming success until the depression of the 1920s.

Her star dipped to the point where she lost her Connecticut farm house and had to go to work as a tap room hostess in nearby Waterbury. At the height of her career she had earned as much as $4,000 a week.

She bobbed up again in 1940 as a singer with a New York World's Fair production, and in 1945 did a Broadway cabaret stint. Three years ago she sang at a Hungarian restaurant in Manhattan.

TV and radio parts were coming her way of late. She was preparing for an appearance on Ed Sullivan's Toast of the Town.

She was married three times and each marriage ended in divorce.

Maintaining vigil over her body until it was discovered by a handyman and maid was her aged Pekinese dog.

The men got $18 from Legge before fleeing.

House Ends Work on Bills For $770,000

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri House of Representatives finished the first round of work on appropriations in this dwindling special session yesterday. Next week the spotlight shifts to the Senate.

The House killed some $600,000 in appropriations as "political." Most of those passed are headed for compromise action between the House and Senate. And those defeated appeared to be scheduled for revival attempts when the House comes back to work next week.

The special session must quit work by April 23—just two weeks from today.

Killed by the Republican controlled House were bills to:

• Allot $500,000 additional for construction of a 500-bed hospital at Higginsville for the state School for Feeble Minded.

• Requested for use along with an earlier $1 million appropriation. Give the State Department of Revenue $100,000 more to operate the state's new driver responsibility act.

• Allow small pay increases for guards at Alcoa Intermediate Reformatory with a $10,700 appropriation.

• Passed and sent to the Senate were bills to:

• Give the state Penitentiary $500,000 for food, fuel and clothing and $59,000 for salary hikes of guards and repairs to buildings.

• Add $30,000 to the $100,000 appropriated earlier to build a new sewage disposal plant at Nevada State Hospital.

• Allow the state veterinarian $22,500 to operate control programs for vesicular exanthema, a hog disease, and rabies.

• Use $148,000 for expenses and mileage of the special session.

• Add $12,000 to operating funds of the state Board of Cosmetology and $11,700 additional for the state Nurses' Examining Board.

The Senate comes back to work next Monday afternoon and the House reconvenes Tuesday afternoon.

Ask AFL Organizer Be Cited on Contempt

ST. LOUIS — A federal grand jury has asked that Pete Saffo, AFL Teamster Union organizer, be cited for contempt of court for his refusal to answer questions about pistol holsters.

U. S. Dist. Judge George H. Moore, who previously had ordered Saffo to answer the questions, continued the case until next Wednesday.

The questions concern nine holsters which Max Goldschtein, special assistant U. S. attorney, said were carried on union records as office supplies.

Saffo first refused to answer the questions yesterday when the jury filed its presentment with Judge Moore.

Saffo's attorney, Morris Rosen, told Judge Moore earlier that Saffo feared his answers might bring "the hot breath of prosecution on the back of his neck."

About 55 per cent of U. S. births took place in hospitals in 1950 compared to 88 per cent in 1950.

Wire-tap Bill Fate Unknown In the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House-passed bill to legalize the use of wiretapped evidence against spies and saboteurs faced an uncertain fate in the Senate today, although there were promises of early consideration.

What emerged yesterday after nearly two full days of heated House debate was far short of the legislation asked by Atty. Gen. Brownell.

Instead of giving him the sole powers he requested for the prosecution of spies, saboteurs, persons accused of espionage, sedition or seditious conspiracy, or charged with violation of the internal security or atomic energy acts.

The Democratic-sponsored provision for court approval was substituted for the administration bill by a 221-166 roll call vote in which 32 Republicans and 1 independent joined 188 Democrats to make up the majority. All 166 votes against it came from the GOP.

The bill was then sent to the Senate 378-10.

In essence, the bill would alter a 20-year-old rule which makes wiretapped information inadmissible as evidence in the federal courts.

It would legalize evidence obtained from wiretaps for the prosecution of spies, saboteurs, persons accused of espionage, sedition or seditious conspiracy, or charged with violation of the internal security or atomic energy acts.

Subject to an advance court order, FBI or military agents would be empowered to tap wires upon the written approval of the attorney general.

In the Senate, strong opposition to wiretap legislation has been evident in the past, and such measures have died in the Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), chairman of a Judiciary subcommittee on wiretapping, said in an interview, however, he is convinced "there is a need for appropriate legislation."

He introduced a bill more than a year ago similar to the measure passed by the House but no hearings have been held on it. Wiley said he would try to arrange for early hearings—"the sooner the better."

The House bill contains a provision which would permit the attorney general, without need for court approval, to use wiretap information already in FBI files in future prosecutions.

It would also make it unlawful to tap wires except within the narrow limits of the bill, and for the first time would provide penalties for unauthorized wiretapping. The maximums are a $5,000 fine and a year in jail.

New 3c Stamp Launched Amid Hard Feelings

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Post Office Department today launched a new "good will" stamp on water, called by the walkout of Arab diplomats who protested they had been insulted by an American Jewish leader's remarks at the stamp's unveiling.

The ambassadors and other representatives of Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Egypt yesterday arose, some banging their chairs, and left a luncheon honoring the stamp after Dr. Norman Salt, president of the Synagogue Council of America, described Israel as the only democratic nation in the Near East. Salt also used the term "murder by Jordanians" when he complained the United Nations had done nothing about killings of Israelis.

Dr. Salt last night tendered apologies through the State and Post Office Departments, which sponsored the luncheon.

The gathering of diplomats, in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, was part of a spectacular program to introduce the new 3-cent stamp to the nation and to the world. It will be principally used on international mail, pictures the Statue of Liberty and carries the words "In God We Trust."

Joe Adonis Receives Jail Term for Saying He Was US Citizen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Racketeer Joe Adonis today was sentenced to 8 to 24 months in jail for falsely swearing before Senate committee probes that was an American citizen.

Adonis, whose name long has figured in organized crime, was sentenced by U. S. District Judge Walter M. Bastian.

Adonis, 31, was convicted by a jury March 25 on a single charge of perjury.

Judge Bastian acquitted Adonis in the course of his trial on another charge—that he swore falsely when he said he was born in Passaic, N. J.

The government offered evidence that Adonis was born in Italy November 22, 1902, a seven-year-old boy and never obtained citizenship.

Adonis, whose real name is Joseph Doto, was allowed to remain at liberty pending the outcome of an appeal.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Mrs. Adeline Delaney of nearby Mason, Tenn., could very well be "the workingest woman in the United States."

She says she works a 20½ hour day five days a week. On Saturday and Sundays she puts in a full 24 hours.

Here's her work routine which she outlined today to Press-Scimitar columnist Eldon Roark:

The 65-year-old widow rises at 5:30 a.m. and delivers the newspaper Commercial Appeal. After breakfast she does housework, sewing for the public, raises chickens, works four vegetable gardens, makes all her own clothes and clothes for her two foster grandchildren.

In the afternoon she delivers the Press-Scimitar, then returns to her gardening, housework and sewing. Never stops for a nap.

And at night, she cleans up a theater after it closes. It's usually about 2 a. m. when she does it. But the theater has its largest crowds on Saturday and Sunday nights. It takes longer to clean up after those big audiences.

"So I just don't get through in time to go to bed at all on Saturday and Sunday nights," she said.

Mrs. Delaney says she's followed virtually the same schedule for three years.

"Why does she work so hard?" "Well," she explained, "I just like to keep busy."

Finishes 24-Day Diet Of Milk, Orange Juice With Improved Health

SASKATOON, Sask. (AP)—Dr. D. L. Gibson says he hasn't felt so "perky" in years—after a 24-day demonstration diet of three quarts of milk and four ounces of orange juice daily.

He also took one iron tablet every five days.

Dr. Gibson, head of the University of Saskatchewan's dairy science department, told his students milk was an almost-perfect food. When they scoffed, he collected 25 cents from each one to finance the experiment and embarked on the diet March 15.

His chief inconvenience, he found, came in rearranging his feeding times. He digested the liquids so rapidly he got hungry every two hours.

The experiment ended Wednesday. His physician, Dr. Glen Kinsman, examined him yesterday and said Gibson's health was better than at any time during the eight years he's known him.

Gibson gained three pounds. All that juice added up to about 2,300 calories, more than a plenty for a sedentary worker.

Boy Ends Lifetime Of Silence, Gets New Hearing Aid

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The mother didn't get an answer when she spoke to her 10-year-old son. But neither seemed to mind. They knew a young lifetime of silence had ended.

Mrs. Joseph Barksdale of Kansas City was a little dubious when she took her son Joe, deaf since birth, to a doctor's office for fitting with a new hearing aid.

Joe didn't show much emotion until he stepped off the office elevator, wearing the new aid.

"Joe began stomping his feet. He had heard himself walking," his mother related.

"The next thing I know he heard was a car. His eyes got big and he began looking in all directions. I think he realized where the noise was coming from."

It won't be long before Joe will be learning a new trick—how to talk.

Hearing is still a luxury for Joe. He can wear his new aid for only an hour a day. But he hopes to have his highly sensitive auditory membranes toughened in about three weeks.

Then he'll be able to wear the aid whenever he chooses.

Kansas City Council Okays Anti-Noise Law

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An anti-noise ordinance which would prohibit the sounding of motor car horns except to warn of a threatened accident was approved last night by the City Council general committee.

One of the backers of the measure was George M. Burns, manager of the Kansas City Safety Council, who said he believed the elimination of car honking would lead to a reduction of accidents.

Drouth, Main Trouble Maker In Vast Area

By Sam Dawson
PHOENIX, Ariz. (P)—Drought—NOT "inventory recession"—is the prime troublemaker for business today in many sections between Arizona and the Mississippi and even beyond.

Vast acreages of parched earth threaten to pare a sizable slice from the nation's grain and meat supplies and from the incomes of farmers and ranchers and from the prosperity of the towns and cities servicing them.

But weather miracles can happen. And here's one.

Runoffs from a freak storm like of which hasn't been seen since 1905, the weather bureau says—are reviving cattle water-holes, ranges and prospects, pouring tons of water into depleted irrigation reservoirs and helping replenish groundwater levels in wells that have been failing fast for five years.

It is also reviving business sentiment here more noticeably than have any of the counter-recession measures taken in the Eastern financial and governmental centers. In the Southwest, rain is more potent than Wall Street and as much so as Washington.

Other states haven't been so lucky yet. Scattered rains have helped some. And in Missouri and eastern Kansas they hope that the April showers will come along on schedule to save the wheat crop. But some towns in that area are shipping in their drinking water in tank cars, while trying out rationing schemes.

The toll of drought elsewhere in the nation is high. In parts of the Southeastern states winter precipitation was below normal, after scattered droughts there had hurt crops and livestock last summer and depressed store sales in some places.

Livestock men in parts of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado are hard hit by the dry cycle. Texans this week are discussing plans for distribution of surplus food from federal stores among the needy, whose livelihood shrunk for lack of water.

From parts of southern Iowa hit by drought last summer come reports that livestock is being sold by feeders who don't want to pay the government loan price for corn from more favored counties to fatten their stock.

Federal agencies report that in parts of the western Great Plains wheat is in a "precautionary condition" due to the "combined effects of drought, wind erosion and low temperatures" and in some sections from heavy deposits of silt from dust storms.

In the Southwest, where dry and wet cycles have often followed each other in roughly set patterns, many old-timers are fearful that the dry years have yet to run their course.

That's why "the great storm" here, which poured as much as 10 inches of rain on some watersheds, amazed and delighted Arizonans, especially as it came late, at a time when the long, dry spell usually is starting.

Arizona Cattlegrowers Assn. spokesmen say the ranges now should carry the cattle easily until the summer rains start in July.

Gets Her Tax Refund, One Whole US Penny

LOS ANGELES (P)—A telephone switchboard operator, Miss Carol Shaw, has her penny back. She received it by mail yesterday from the Department of Internal Revenue. It constituted the refund on her 1953 income tax return. She figured the government owed her one cent, and she was right.

Miss Shaw got a check for a penny. She's planning on keeping it. It's No. 24,116,338.

Ends His Oklahoma To California Hike

LOS ANGELES (P)—Why would anybody make the journey here from Enid, Okla., on foot?

"I guess I just wanted to prove I'm different," L. O. Henderson told reporters yesterday.

The 44-year-old bearded hiker said he averaged 16 miles daily, pulled a 376-pound wagon all the way, wore out 11 pairs of shoes and has been on the road 20 months with his collie, Skipper.

City Pays $12 for Two Absentee Ballots

TRENTON (P)—It cost the city of Trenton $12 for two persons to vote Tuesday. The two voted by absentee ballot.

Four persons as required by law, canvassed the ballots last night. They were each paid $3.

SO LONG, PAL—"Cinco Rosa," a month-old burro, says a sad farewell to owner Mark McGovern, who's on his way to an independent hospital. McGovern bought the animal for his son. But his car was involved in an accident on their way to Birmingham, Mich. When Dixon Kepley, an ambulance driver, right, found them, McGovern was doubled up in the front seat and "Cinco Rosa" was licking his master's face. While McGovern was in the hospital, the burro checked into a local barn.

'Blue Rain' Only Elm Tree Buds Blown by Wind

DETROIT (P)—Astonished Detroiters were talking today about the "blue rain" which spattered hundreds of homes on the North-west Side yesterday.

Davenport, Iowa, had the same thing.

Houses were flecked with tiny blue spots. Some of it was a purplish-blue.

Science came up with explanations—though first excitement ran high.

One unofficial theory, for instance, was that it might have come from the hydrogen bomb tests in the Pacific. There was positively no expert support for that one.

Civil defense launched an investigation and determined there was "no cause for alarm."

Elm tree buds—that's what it was in Detroit apparently.

Dr. Joseph G. Molner, city health commissioner, advanced the explanation. He said the buds had fallen to the ground, rested on the damp earth, and had then been blown forcefully against the houses by Wednesday night's big wind storm.

Chemicals in the house paint probably contributed to the ultimate coloring, he said.

Scientists in Davenport reported microscopic examination showed the flecks were caused by a type of vegetable material, probably pollen spores.

Girl Sleeps in Car Because Family's House Is Too Small

ST. JOSEPH (P)—Page the old woman who lived in a shoe.

Police this morning investigated a report a young girl was in a car, either asleep or dead.

They aroused the 17-year-old miss and learned she was sleeping in the car because the tiny apartment her family lived in was too small for the eight members.

It also was too small for all the clothing. So part of the clothing was in the car, guarded by the sleeping girl.

Two Wild Ducks Slow Construction Project

DEDHAM, Mass. (P)—One phase of operations in the construction of a three-million-dollar factory will be held up about three weeks while two wild ducks hatch 12 eggs.

The black ducks are in a spot being cleared by bulldozers for a spur railroad track.

Wrightson Christopher, sportsman and general manager of Rust Craft Publishers, manufacturers of greeting cards, spotted the frightened ducks on a visit to the site yesterday and ordered the clearing work stopped temporarily.

Rumor Say ROK Gov't Will Attend Geneva Conference

SEOUL (P)—South Korea's capital buzzed with rumors today that the government had decided to attend the Geneva conference and would announce the decision next week.

Several Korean newspapers privately said they had the word from "reliable sources within the government" but had been cautioned against publication now.

The rumor hit full bloom after U.S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs called on President Syngman Rhee yesterday and then Rhee and Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai went into a six-hour conference.

A source close to Rhee said no decision had been made.

Rhee and his government have refused so far to say if South Korea would attend the April 26 conference on Far East issues.

Walkout Blocks Red Demand for Debate On H-bomb, Luce

ROME (P)—A walkout by Social Democratic senators blocked another leftist demand last night for debate on the hydrogen bomb and the activities of U.S. Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce.

The Senate was adjourned after a roll call showed a quorum was not present.

The Social Democrats (anti-Communist Socialists) left the Senate after a pro-Red Socialist asked for action on a demand of a week ago that the American envoy be declared unwelcome because she allegedly had interfered in Italian politics.

The request for immediate debate on the H-bomb came from a Communist senator.

ALBANY, N. Y. (P)—At least eight women in a seventh-floor office of the New York Telephone Co. yesterday checked their nylon stockings and oops—disaster!

Chemists believed it might have been caused by fumes and industrial vapors.

Shocked Over Pre-medical Curriculum

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Reporter

CHICAGO (P)—Most college boys aiming to become doctors take such "stereotyped" non-cultural courses that they "even begin to look and speak alike," a nationally-known educator says.

Chancellor Lawrence A. Kimpton of the University of Chicago, saying that would-be physicians need knowledge of "humanizing" subjects if they want to prepare for the position of leadership expected of them, told the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians last night:

"The doctor as a leader should know the true and the good, and it could do no harm if he appreciated the beautiful."

"But I for one am shocked by the typical premedical curriculum. Youngsters presenting themselves for candidacy to our medical schools show a monotonous and unvarying stereotype of training involving prescribed units of (scientific subjects)..."

He said that because of the "difficulty" of entrance into medical schools, the youngster preparing for such a school "plays it safe and does not monkey around with cultural courses that the (medical school) admission committees do not pay any attention to anyway."

But he added: "The typical premedical curriculum runs a serious risk of educating out of the student the creativity, the critical appreciation, the ability to think, which are so necessary a part of leadership. Pre-medics even begin to look and speak alike."

Brother Is Killed In Attempt to Jail Man for Intoxication

MORGAN, Utah (P)—Attempts to throw their oldest brother in jail for intoxication ended in death last night for one, Norris Stuart, about 33, a milk farmer in the Morgan area.

Norris was helping one brother, Morgan County Sheriff T. J. Stuart, jail Verde Stuart, another brother, when the shooting broke out. Norris was hit in the chest.

He died instantly, officers said. Sheriff Stuart said Verde was searched for weapons and none was found. Norris was hit by a bullet from a .22-caliber automatic pistol.

Verde was being held in the Morgan County Jail pending the outcome of an inquest called by County Atty. Grant Neilson.

Adlai Enters Hospital For Further Treatment

CHICAGO (P)—Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, entered Passavant Hospital last night for further treatment of a kidney ailment.

He was accompanied to the hospital by William McCormick Blair Jr., an administrative assistant to Stevenson during his term as governor of Illinois. Blair said Stevenson had canceled speaking engagements in Indiana for this weekend. Blair said he did not know whether surgery would be necessary.

McCarthy Offers Steak To Innocent Parties Hurt by Investigation

TUCSON, Ariz. (P)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) says he will give a steak—a T-bone steak—to any innocent person hurt by his investigation of communism.

He made the offer in a Nogales, Mexico, cafe yesterday when a Tucson reporter asked if the probes had ever injured the wrong people.

"Let me put it this way," said McCarthy. "If I've hurt any innocent party in my investigations, let my opposition produce this party."

The vacationing senator looked down at a big T-bone steak on the table and added:

"If I have hurt any innocent person, I'll give him a T-bone steak."

McCarthy and his wife Jean plan to leave the Tucson ranch of columnist Westbrook Pegler, where they are staying, for Washington this weekend.

Merry-Go-Round Wyoming Community Faces Problems of Atomic Age

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Mayor Sam Tully of Rawlins, Wyo., has been in Washington the last few days, pounding the pavements, calling on bureaucrats and feeling pretty discouraged. As a last resort he came to see me. And when I heard his story I didn't blame him for feeling blue.

Mayor Tully makes a living as a conductor on the Union Pacific Railroad. Being mayor of Rawlins is a full-time job but since the city can't afford to pay him more than $100 a month, he's a railroad man by boot. And right now the city is less able to pay him because the Union Pacific has closed down its coal mines in the surrounding area and about 1,800 miners are walking the streets.

That's why the mayor has been walking the streets of Washington.

"The mines were working only two or three days a week for some time before this," he explained, "so nobody was very flush. But now the Union Pacific is giving up coal altogether—switching to oil. So the mines are finished, won't open any more. They aren't even bothering to take the machinery out."

Atomic Age

"Those mines had the best safety record in the entire United States," I recalled. "Averell Harriman used to be very proud of them."

"Yes," said the mayor, "and they always made money. But now the railroad is going to oil, and after oil runs out in the United States, they figure there'll be atomic energy. So there just isn't much chance for the coal miners any more."

"However, they've got kids who have got to eat, and that's why I'm in Washington."

The mayor certainly sounded low.

"Whom have you talked to? Did you get any help from your senators?"

"Not much," said the mayor. "Senator Barrett, he's the Republican, and is supposed to have the power these days. But he didn't seem able to use it for us. He's just spent $270,000 on an investigation of elections in New Mexico, and if we could have had that much money, it would have fed a lot of miners' families. But they used it probing an election instead."

"A probe that got nowhere," he added.

"There are 500 out of work at Hanna—that's just east of us," continued Mayor Tully, "and there at 4,300 out of work at Rock Springs to the west of us," continued the mayor.

While the mayor talked, I thought back to a snowy night in Rock Springs in November, 1947, when the Friendship Train went through Wyoming on its way to Europe. It was 10:30 p.m. when we arrived, and the people of the town were out in the snow patiently waiting. They had insisted that we stop, though Rock Springs wasn't on our schedule.

They had collected two carloads of grain—collected it from the miners and merchants, the farmers and the school kids, and naturally they waited to see their cars hooked on to the train. So they were down there in the snow with a brass band in Scotch kilts, with their knees looking pretty cold, but very proud of their gift to the Friendship Train.

Bureaucratic Runaround

"Well, I've gone the rounds," said Mayor Tully. "I saw Thomas Pike at the Defense Department, but got the runaround. I hoped we could get some defense installations transferred out to our county, but he said they had to put the installations where the Army wanted 'em."

"I showed him a copy of the Deseret News announcing that the Air Force was putting up a radar control post at Winnemucca, Nevada, and that about a thousand people would be employed at a new ammunition storage depot at Nellis Field, Nevada. But it didn't make any impression. Senator McCarran seemed to get things for Nevada, but not Senator Barrett."

"Then I saw Victor Cooley, the Deputy Director of Defense Mobilization," continued the mayor, "but he said the government just wasn't spending any money."

"Then I saw Victor Roterus of the Commerce Department. He runs an office that advises on locating new industry. His assistant, a Mr. Gusten Larson, was very courteous and anxious to help. He gave us some good advice. But private industry doesn't like to locate out in the Rocky Mountains and it's going to take a long time to find someone to come out there. Meanwhile, our relief checks are going to run out pretty soon."

Tearing Up Families

The mayor looked at me as if I could solve the situation.

"You're our last resort," he said.

I sat there, feeling about as discouraged and futile as the bureaucrats. Finally I picked up the phone and tried to call Averell Harriman, an idealistic, humanitarian person who is the biggest stockholder in the Union Pacific, but doesn't have much to do with running it any more. Harriman was away and I couldn't reach him. But I'm still trying.

Of course it's a pretty big job to move new industry into an area and it takes someone just about as big as the government to do it. But it's a heartrending job, on the other hand, to tear 1,000 families up by the roots and move them someplace else.

While the mayor talked I sat thinking of the welcome people gave the Friendship Train as it passed through Wyoming—Green River, Rawlins, Laramie, Cheyenne, and especially the tiny little town of Rock Springs with the barelegged kiltie band waiting patiently out in the snow, and the school kids blowing their horns with such pride that I thought their cheeks would burst, and the miners and farmers who had collected two carloads of grain to feed less fortunate friends standing in the bitter cold waiting to see their cars hooked up to move east.

So I'm going to do what I can to prod the bureaucrats into doing something. For certainly when a community is uprooted through no fault of its own, a government which takes its toll of men in time of war should return dividends in time of economic distress.

Meanwhile if any private industry is looking for a place to locate where people are alert, diligent, and so very, very grateful, contact Mayor Sam Tully of Rawlins, or Dwight Jones, president of the city council of Rock Springs, Wyo.

Congress Controls Output Of GOP Campaign 'Ammo'

By Bruce Blossart

In an election year, Congress likes to adjourn by July if possible. If you assume that as a fairly firm deadline, the present session is about half over. Congress has not done even a quarter of its prospective work.

When you examine its three months' performance, you realize most of the time has been consumed in a struggle for power and prestige with the Executive establishment. First, the long debate and action on the Bricker amendment and related proposals. Second, and continuing, the various controversies between the Army and Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin.

Depending on your viewpoint, these may or may not be regarded as necessary contests serving the interests of the American people. But there can be no question they take time from what used to be regarded as the legislature's main business: making laws.

With each passing week, it will be increasingly difficult for the Republican leadership on Capitol Hill to drive to passage a significant proportion of the items in President Eisenhower's full program.

And this points up a curious irony. A lot of Republican lawmakers behave as if they cannot win re-election this fall unless they trumpet the theme of communism in government. This is based on the assumption that the President's policies are "unpopular."

Nobody denies that a good many farmers are displeased with Secretary of Agriculture Benson and unhappy over the President's farm proposals. No one denies, either, that Big Labor thinks the administration derelict in meeting what it sees as a definite business recession.

But reports are that congressional mail is running heavily in favor of Mr. Eisenhower's new programs, and those lawmakers who have checked their constituents generally have found a similar response. Thus the adoption of a big share of the President's measures would presumably give them a lot of campaign ammunition.

The less Congress does in the next three months, the less of this ammunition GOP politicians will have. But how much of it they get is a matter under their control.

If it is little, that will be because that is the way they want it.

Prompt Care of Ear Trouble Can Often Prevent Deafness

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

Readers of this column are familiar with the writer's opinion that it is much better to try to prevent diseases, when possible, than to cure them. As in other things, this applies to deafness which can often be prevented, especially if early signs of trouble are discovered in children.

Proper attention to the general health is the most important means which can be used to prevent deafness. The infectious diseases to which children are so susceptible are a common cause of hearing difficulty. Therefore, any child who contracts such conditions as measles or scarlet fever should be under a doctor's care not only to avoid possible hearing difficulty, but other complications.

Once any suspicion of hearing difficulty arises either in a child or in a grownup, a careful examination should be carried out. Hearing disorders do not all come from the same fault. There can be wax or other obstruction in the outer portion of the ear. The eardrum between the outer and middle ear may have a hole in it or be otherwise damaged. The middle ear itself can be infected and inflamed, thus preventing the passage of sound waves through it.

Another source of difficulty is in a third portion of the ear known as the inner ear. This is a complicated structure which can be defective at birth. The nerve returning from the inner ear to the brain may be the source of deafness. Finally, the brain itself which translates sound waves into the sensation of hearing can be responsible for so-called deafness. Obviously, the job of telling where the difficulty lies and what might be done for it, calls for an extremely expert job.

Some cases of hearing difficulty can be completely remedied. Others can be improved. There are still others for which little can be done. In such cases, a hearing aid has to be considered.

Some people seem to feel that wearing a hearing aid is sort of a disgrace. This, of course, is no more true than it is of wearing glasses.

Hearing aids have been greatly improved in recent years. There are now a considerable number of good instruments of this kind on the market and several models to choose from.

The one picked, however, should be carefully adjusted to the individual's needs and not just picked out like a particular brand of soap or toothbrush.

The Council on Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation of the American Medical Association in Chicago (535 North Dearborn Street) has carefully studied these aids and has prepared a list of acceptable devices.

Small Step In Right Direction

The first small break in the traditional neutrality of Sweden has occurred.

Sweden proposes to finance storage facilities and harbor works at Trondheim fjord on the Norwegian coast. From there an oil pipeline would be stretched over mountains 75 miles to the Swedish border.

The evident purpose of this is to assure Sweden a source of oil in the West in the event war or blockade closes her sea routes to the outside. If this project is carried through, it will mean a linking, however fragile, of Sweden's fortunes with the West.

One dare not hazard from this that Sweden is about to yield neutrality totally and join the Western defensive alliance. But it may be the first positive sign that Sweden now sees the strategic situation differently, and is not so sure it could maintain neutrality in another great war.

It goes without saying that Sweden would be a strong addition to the West if that should ever come to pass.

The World Today— Still Woes In Wire Tapping

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON.—The government still faces a stiff road before it can try to convict a spy or subversive on information picked up by tapping his telephone.

The FBI for years has had information against alleged Communist spies obtained by wiretapping. But the law forbids its use in court. Therefore, says Atty. Gen. Brownell, those cases can't be brought to trial.

He asked Congress to change the law. The House agreed to this yesterday. Unless the Senate also approves, the law remains unchanged. The Senate hasn't begun to consider the problem yet, although Congress ends its session in a few months.

The difficulty goes back to 1934 when Congress passed the Federal Communications Act, part of which said: "No person, not being authorized by the sender, shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person."

In a test case later the Supreme Court ruled the law meant the government could not use as evidence against a man on trial in federal court either information obtained by wiretapping or even information for which the wiretapping merely provided leads.

One attorney general after another, including Brownell, has acted in the belief that the Supreme Court didn't say wiretapping itself was illegal under the 1934 law but only that wiretap information couldn't be used as evidence.

So for years the FBI has been tapping wires under the approval of the attorney general, whoever he happened to be. President Roosevelt himself in the early days of World War II authorized it.

This was the result of growing national concern about spies and saboteurs, a mood which has increased with the disclosure in re-

Looking Backward...

In the election Tuesday, April 7, J. L. Babcock was elected mayor; John Burger, chief of police; W. A. Collins, city attorney; Samuel C. Fuller, police judge; Herman Kirschner, assessor; John H. Reddie, collector; E. M. Shields, treasurer; James A. Robb, alderman first ward; Noah Shear, second ward; G. W. Hocker, third ward and E. H. Weinrich, fourth ward. Otis W. Smith and Ed J. Evans were elected to the school board.

N. H. Gentry and John T. Stinson, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, were in Jefferson City conferring with W. A. Dallmeyer, president, on state fair matters.

—1914—
With the temperature at 28 degrees early April 8, ice formed but indications were that the fruit prospects had not been given a severe setback.

—1914—
Jeff J. Gray, aspirant for appointment as postmaster at Green Ridge, was in the city on business.

—1914—
A heavy wooden background, used for decorative purposes at the Carl A. Guenther Dry Goods Store on South Ohio, collapsed and in its fall two large display windows were shattered.

—TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO—
Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Staubb, 635 East 10th, on an outing at Spring Fork Creek near Valda in their Durant coupe, started across that stream when the motor was "killed" midway from one side to the other. The stream was rising rapidly after a heavy downpour and Mr. Staubb carried his wife ashore and then went to secure a team of horses to pull it from the swiftly moving current. By the time he returned the water was nearly over the top of the car. Nightfall was arriving and it was decided to leave it until morning. The raging stream kept rising and the car was swept downstream, turning over and over and being heavily damaged.

—1929—
The Sedalia Board of Education for city schools passed a resolution commending A. L. Pringle, retiring member for his two years service as a member of that body.

—1929—
Two new livestock clubs were organized at Iowa, one being a calf club and the other a pig club. The pig club was to be called the "Grunters."

KILL WITH CARE

XXVIII
MARK brought the car to a grinding stop in front of the Mansfield place. A police officer opened the door for them. "Find anything?" Richards demanded. "A couple of microphones." "A couple of what?" "Microphones. One was planted in the study or workroom, and the other in Mansfield's bedroom. Clever work, too. Right in the soundproofing. Come and see."

They saw the microphones. "Can't trace the wires," the officer said. "There are wires all right, but they're just hanging loose. A lot of wire, but it doesn't go any place. I thought of that, pried the mikes loose, and looked. The wires were just connected at this end."

Mark said, "We can find out who put in this soundproofing." "I can tell you that," the officer said proudly. "Ed Stone's company does that kind of work here. Only one that does."

Mark Richards thought it over. He said, "You've done good work. Anything else?"

"Haven't found any threatening letters. But, Lieutenant, there are a million places in the house where anything could be hidden. And there is one other thing. In the closet in the bedroom, there's an old suit coat, looks like. Pretty dirty and full of holes. The funny thing is it's the wrong size. At least it's bigger than the rest of the stuff."

"Let's take a look." The garment was many sizes larger than the rest of Mansfield's small but expensive and well-cared-for wardrobe. It was frayed at the cuffs, was spotted, and a button was missing.

When Mark took it from the hanger, it was even more obvious the coat was in bad condition. Richards looked at the label. "A local tailor. We'll be able to check the owner, or at least the man for whom it was made."

A quick search of the pockets produced nothing but a fine, metal shaving. Mark replaced the shaving carefully, handed the coat to Dunn.

When Jim held it up between himself and the light, he could see a place between the padded shoulders which was even more worn, which was so thin as to be practically a hole.

"Let's take another look at that shed and workroom," Jim suggested.

Richards took out his bunch of keys without argument. And it was Richards who went directly to the lathe at the workroom end of the shed. He picked up a metal shavings.

"Look here, Jim. Doesn't this look the same as that piece in that coat?"

"Looks the same," Jim said. "You can check, though."

"If it's worth while," Mark said gloomily. "For a minute there I thought that odd-sized coat might mean something. But it's pretty obvious now what it was used for. Just a slipover coat Mansfield wore while he worked in his shop."

Dunn walked to the other end of the long shed, wondered as he had before why the plump dressmaker's dummy should be standing there at the end of a cleared space which ran the length of the building. But his curiosity was vague. The larger part of his mind was on Nancy, and the promised to be at the funeral.

He had not reached the dummy when the officer stationed in Mansfield's apartment came out to them.

"Mr. Dunn. Phone call for you. It's Doc Pardon and he's yelling something about it being a matter of life or death."

Jim hurried inside to the phone, his mind whirling with thoughts of possible accidents which could have happened to Nancy. She had been so much in his mind he could not shake his feeling of something being wrong with her, until he heard Pardon's impatient and urgent voice.

"Dunn? Been hunting for you all over the place for the last hour. Get down here to the hospital right away, won't you?"

"Hospital, what for?"

"Transfusion for Gaylord Mansfield. Hurry up, man. It's an emergency. He's not reacting any too well to plasma. It may keep him alive until you get here, but he needs whole blood. I can't find any other donor with your type. The right type."

THE minutes ticked away slowly as Jim Dunn's blood seeped into the veins of the unconscious Gaylord Mansfield. After the first 10 minutes, Dr. Pardon ignored Jim's question as to the time. Finally the doctor himself went away, leaving a capable but silent nurse in charge.

Jim tried to relax. There was nothing he could do now, but let the transfusion run its course. Gaylord Mansfield muttered. The nurse hurried to his side, evidently found everything progressing favorably, returned to her observation post at the single narrow window.

Mansfield's voice came stronger now, was more coherent. "A fairy story?" Mansfield said. "Your favorite story? Yes, I'll tell you a fairy story if you wish."

It was a pleasant voice, cultured, persuasive. A practiced voice, schooled in the story and in the manner of delivery.

Mansfield repeated the metered lines of young Tony Hughes' play. It was the story of a young prince, victim of an enchantment who was granted his wish to rid himself of his "ugly disguise." The changes wrought, made him more perfect than all others.

Jim Dunn forgot the time, forgot the slow draining of his own blood. He listened so intently he was conscious of the slow thudding of his own heart.

Says Keeping Calm Is First Rule When Storm Warnings Come

ST. LOUIS.—Keeping calm is the first rule when tornado warnings are received. H. E. Altman, storm warning specialist of the U. S. weather bureau, says.

Clogging telephone switchboards with calls at the first warning of a tornado many miles away causes much unnecessary confusion, Altman told newsmen.

my beloved, as we have always obeyed, and as in my presence only, but much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." (Philippians 2:12). From Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy the following passage will be read: "Vibrating like a pendulum sin and the hope of forgiveness—selfishness and sensuality causing constant retrogression—our moral progress will be slow; waking to Christ's demand, mortals experience suffering; and through them even as drowning men, to make vigorous efforts to save themselves; and through Christ's precious love these efforts are crowned with success." (22:3).

GROWING SPIRITUALLY

By E. STANLEY JONES

FEAR THE RESULT OF INSECURITY

We have looked at the over-all climate of our civilization—a climate which is a climate of anxiety. And unless the individual has inner resources which make him immune to this invading climate, he will be a personal reflection of an uncertain civilization. He will be afraid.

Unfortunately the individual creates a lot of fears and anxieties of his own. There are only two fears born within us, so the psychologists say—the fear of loud noises and the fear of falling. The rest of our fears and anxieties are home-grown. They are ours. They come out of a variety of causes and attitudes. We become self centered, and we then become vaguely conscious that we are on the wrong center, off-center, and hence afraid. We hold resentments against people, and again we feel vaguely that this is an alien way to live—alien because it alienates us from others and from ourselves. We hate ourselves for hating. We hold guilt, unconfessed and unsundered, in our lives, and hence we are afraid. The first reaction of Adam when he disobeyed was, "I was afraid. . . so I hid myself" (Gen. 3:10, Moffat). Life goes underground when it is aboveboard. It knows that it no longer has cosmic backing and is therefore conscious of being naked, alone, and afraid.

But there is another basic fear—the fear of the soul that is cut off from its central Root, God. Many, when they look into their hearts, will know that they too are, as Auden puts it, "alive but alone, belonging—where?" Unattached, as Humblywood, "Hence afraid. When we don't belong to God, then we do belong to fear."

Here is an illustration of belonging to an illicit love instead of belonging to God: "I loved my employer, a married man. He had an affair with another woman. I told his wife. She divorced him, and he married the other woman. It is she against whom I hold resentments. But I'm tired of hating someone, so tired of being a snail. She attached herself to the wrong center."

Our Father God, our fears come in when Thou dost go out. I take Thee in, and fears go out. Amen.

Affirmation for the Day: There is no fear in love. I am rooted in love; therefore there is no fear in me.

Sunday School Lesson Notes...

The Upper Room to Calvary
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

What might seem to be a disproportionate part of the record of the life of Jesus in the Four Gospels is devoted to the brief period of the closing days. This period includes the Passover Last Supper in the Upper Room, the tragedy of Calvary and the triumph of the Resurrection.

There is, however, no disproportion. For these closing days were related to all that went before and what they record is the climax of the life, ministry and sacrifice prophesied in the very days of Mary's rejoicing in her new-born Child.

"Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also" (Luke 2:35). For, with that prophetic word stands the grim reality (John 19:25). "Now there stood by the cross of Jesus His mother." Bethlehem and Calvary are one.

I had read that statement about Mary at the cross many times but without visualizing its actuality of love and suffering. Then, during the four years of World War I, I sensed something of its reality.

During that time I ministered to a Canadian congregation and looked Sunday after Sunday into the eyes of mothers whose sons were off in the mud and blood of France and Flanders.

I wonder with what measure of reality most of us think of the Cross of Christ. When we think of Jesus, and accord Him our love and devotion, do we think only of the gentle Jesus, the Christ who blessed the children and walked with His disciples through the fields?

Does our following end there? Or do we follow all the way, to the Upper Room and the Cross? It is a challenge to us who lead comparatively easy and comfortable lives while many in our own time have to face the test of bitter persecution.

I have reacted against conceptions of the Atonement that represent God the Father as forgiving some of His children only by inflicting punishment on an innocent Son. Jesus reasoned from human fatherhood to divine Fatherhood (Matthew 7:9-11). The idea of punishment, I am sure, is not the clue to the Atonement.

Nevertheless, there is a great mystery embedded in suffering and tragedy. The writer in Hebrews 9:22 says that "without shedding of blood there is no remission of sins," though I refer the reader to the manner in which he relates the law of sacrifice in the Old Testament to the sacrifice of Christ in the New.

In the Upper Room, as Jesus offered the cup to the disciples. He said, "This is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." A hymn in common use a generation or so ago was William Cowper's "There is a Fountain Filled With Blood." Today, I believe, it is seldom, if ever, sung, and it is entirely omitted from recent hymn books.

Perhaps there is warrant for that, if one visualizes with reality a "fountain of blood."

Milwaukeeans Greet Braves At Home Today

By BEN PHLEGAR
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Braves come home today to find out whether the sophomore jinx hits ball clubs as well as ballplayers.

The Milwaukee atmosphere is bound to be slightly changed this season even though the good people of Wisconsin beat down the box office doors during the winter to buy a record number of advance tickets.

Last year the mere idea of seeing real live major league ball players, even members of a team that wallowed in seventh place the previous season, drove Milwaukee residents into ecstasy.

The enthusiasm was contagious. The Braves put up a real pennant scrap and finished second. But this time around the fans probably will be expecting a little bit more.

The Braves return to Milwaukee for a three-game series with their former city rivals, the Boston Red Sox. The Sox had whipped them four times this spring but some of the Milwaukee excitement seeped south to Louisville, Ky., yesterday and Charley Grimm's men whipped the Bostonians 5-3.

Two encouraging factors in the victory were Eddie Mathews' eighth spring home run the will have to hit a lot this summer and Bob Buhl's nine-inning mound stint. Buhl, a real find in his first big league season, also will be fighting the elusive jinx that is supposed to dog players in their second year in the majors.

Another city series also opens today when the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees resume their World Series rivalry at Ebbets Field.

The Dodgers wound up a two-night stay in Washington last night with a 6-2 triumph over the Senators. The Yankees whipped the month's new International League team 7-2 before a rain-drenched crowd of more than 16,000.

In other exhibition games yesterday Cincinnati defeated Detroit 4-1, the St. Louis Cardinals bowed to the Chicago White Sox 6-2 and the Philadelphia Phillies defeated Schenectady of the Eastern League 7-5.

The Cardinals' White Sox game was the first time Negro players were teamed with and against white players in Memphis. Minnie Minoso started for Chicago and Bob Boyd, a Negro player who lives in Memphis, got into the game for the White Sox in the late innings. There was no demonstration of any kind from the crowd of 11,000.

Take 'Sacrifice' For US to Beat Soviet Olympians

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (P)—Jim Owen, who helped guide America's boxers to an unprecedented five championships in the Helsinki Olympics, warned today it will take a "great sacrifice" by U. S. athletes to beat the Russians in the 1956 games in Melbourne.

"The Russians were tough—real tough—in Helsinki and they didn't have much coaching experience," said Owen, who was co-coach of the '32 boxing squad. "They sent over a lot of observers to the '48 games in London and they must have done a lot of observing considering how well they made out in their first crack at the Olympics in Finland. With better coaching they might have won."

In order to prepare for the games, a lot of our kids are going to have to make a great sacrifice. Many will have to miss a semester of school. And many of our working athletes will have to make financial sacrifices. They'll have to take leaves from their jobs in a very, very busy time for many businesses because the Christmas season is coming on."

"The Russians are a year and a half ahead of us now. They never stopped after the last games."

Six-Man Coach Staff Is Named for All-Stars

CHICAGO (P)—A six-man coaching staff for the college all-star football squad was completed today with the naming of Northwestern's Bob Voigts and Purdue's Stu Holcomb as assistants to Head Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland.

Others previously named for the staff were Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, Chuck Taylor of Stanford and Forest Evashevski of Iowa.

The squad will open practice July 23 at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., in preparation for the big game in Soldier Field Aug. 13 with the Detroit Lions, National Football League champions.

Sports Roundup—More Talk This Spring About Rookies Breaking In To Stay

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (P)—It seems here that there has been more talk this spring about phenomenal rookies who are about to break into big league lineups and stay there than in any season we can recall.

A ready explanation stems from the deadening domination of the two leagues by the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Outside the two leaders, every team in the majors is pining seriously in one department or another, and there is a dreadful urgency on all sides to close the yawning gaps around the top and produce a couple of old-time pennant races before attendance falls off even further than it already has.

There's only one chance of closing in on the Yanks and Dodgers, and that lies in finding fresh young talent to fit in with the veterans who have failed and possibly inspire them to greater deeds.

In numerous cases managers are holding on grimly to youngsters who were not even on their rosters when training began, and they intend to take them right into the season on the off-chance that lightning will strike.

Perhaps the outstanding example is that of the Cleveland Indians, who have just snatched Rudy Regalado from their Indianapolis farm and signed him to a parent club contract. The former USC star, who appeared suddenly like a blinding light to batter the ball this spring, probably represents the one chance the Indians have of improving a team that has proved it can finish only second.

Or, in the National League, take the runner-up Milwaukee Braves. A pair of rookies, one of them virtually unknown, probably hold the key to the team's hopes of cutting seriously into Brooklyn's 13-game superiority of last year.

Henry Aaron, a stocky little Negro slugger up all the way from Jacksonville in class D, could help keep the Braves in the race until Bobby Thomson's broken arm, the key to the outfield adequately by Gene Conley, a towering 7-foot-8 right-hander who won 23 for Toledo last year, could "make" Charlie Grimm's pitching staff if he gets the ball over to suit National League umpires.

Dalton Wins Over Hubbard In Track Meet

The C. C. Hubbard High School and Dalton High School track teams held a dual meet at the Jonnie Jaynes Lewis stadium Thursday afternoon. It was won by the strong Dalton team, which took first place honors at the Class C state indoor track and field meet in Columbia April 1.

Johnson was Hubbard's leading performer with seven points. He took first in the discus throw and third in the 440-yard dash. Kyle was second for Hubbard with five points, third in the mile run and second in the 880.

Siol, Dalton, was the outstanding performer in the meet. He captured three firsts, the 100-yard dash, the 220-yard dash, and shot-put.

Beverly Foster, Hubbard High School principal, praised the showing of the inexperienced Hubbard team and remarked that his team did well against the well groomed and experienced Dalton team.

The results of the meet are:
Discus — Johnson, Hubbard; Crawford, Hubbard; Smith, Dalton. Distance, 83 feet.
Shotput — Siol, Dalton; L. Smith, Hubbard. Distance, 37' 8".
100-Yard Dash — Siol, Dalton; Wright, Dalton; Carter, Hubbard. Time, 1.10.
1 Mile Run — Childs, Dalton; Banks, Dalton; Kyle, Hubbard. Time, 5:16.
440-Yard Dash — Wright, Dalton; Allen, Dalton; Johnson, Hubbard. Time, 60.2.
220-Yard Dash — Siol, Dalton; Carter, Hubbard; Harker, Dalton. Time, 2:26.
880-Yard Run — Childs, Dalton; Kyle, Hubbard; Wright, Dalton; Siol, Dalton. Time, 1:40.

The Hubbard team will be entered in the conference meet, which is scheduled for April 21 at the new stadium. Other teams entered for the affair are Dalton, Hummel and Columbia. There is a possibility other teams will be entering the meet.

'Boy Wonder' In a Comeback At Age of 24

DAYTON, Ohio (P)—At an age when many young men are still pondering what career to follow, Troy Rutman is launching a comeback.

Unusual? Not for this 24-year-old Californian who decided in his teens to make auto racing his life's work.

Troy reached the pinnacle of racing's "boy wonder," destined to become one of the sport's all-time greats when he crashed at Cedar Rapids, Ia., on Aug. 17, 1952, only a few weeks after his greatest victory.

His severely injured right arm still was suspended in a traction device last Memorial Day. Instead of defending his Indianapolis championship, Troy's 1953 mission at the speedway was to still whisper reports he would never drive a race car again.

He will silence the rumor Sunday when he steps into the Emerson "Malay" sprint car at Dayton Speedway for the AAA Midwest circuit inaugural event.

Rutman extended a firm right hand of greeting today, and without being asked, said:

"The arm feels stronger all the time. I'm ready to give racing a run. I want to know for sure until I try again."

Can the driver who once was the scourge of Midwest high-banked tracks win Sunday's race? "Let's not kid anyone," Troy replied. "I haven't driven a race car for 19 months. I tried a midget a couple of times out west, and won a stock car race, but this will be my first time back in the cars."

But I don't know for sure until I run a few practice laps and check the driver who once was the scourge of Midwest high-banked tracks win Sunday's race?

23 Golfers Clustered In Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (P)—With 23 golfers clustered within four strokes of each other, the 18th Masters Golf Tournament still was a wide-open scramble going into today's second round.

Billy Joe Patton, an amateur who usually is too busy selling lumber to play in tournaments, and Dutch Harrison, who his the poncho trail whenever his aching back will let him, were tied for the lead with 2-under-par 70s.

Only one stroke back were Lloyd Mangrum and Jack Burke Jr. Defending Champion Ben Hogan and top money winner Dave Douglas were another shot to the rear with par 72s.

Ten other players were only three strokes off the pace of the surprise first-round leaders, and seven more had 74s. It was one of the most closely grouped fields in Masters history.

Patton, a Morganton, N.C., father of three whose greatest claim to fame previously was his 1950 Carolinas Open victory, used superb putting to put together the finest nine-hole score of the day, a 32 on the front side. Par on the Augusta National course is 36-36-72.

The rain bothered Vic Ghezzi and Lex Worsham, both of whom were within easy striking distance of Patton's 70 at the turn. After going out in 33, Ghezzi soared to a 40 on the back nine.

Worsham was out in 34 but had to settle for 40 coming in after a disastrous 8 on the 13th.

Among those in the 73 bracket were Byron Nelson, Cary Middlecoff and Tommy Bolt. Those with 74s included Sam Snead, Walter Burkemo and Al Besselnk.

Orioles Have High Records Facing Them

BAITIMORE (P)—When the Baltimore Orioles take the field in Detroit next Tuesday to open their first major league season in 32 years, the players will find some lofty team records confronting them.

The Orioles are "new" to modern fans. So they may be surprised to hear some of the marks established by famous Baltimore players of past major league teams.

For instance, there doesn't seem to be a ghost of a chance for any member of this year's team to come even close to the club's lasting record set "way back in 1897."

That was the year Willie "Hit 'em where they ain't" Keeler clubbed National League pitching for a .432 average.

If any 1954 Oriole comes within 100 points of that mark, club officials and fans will be happy. Don Lenhardt led the team with a .317 last year while playing in only 97 games.

Another record well out of reach was set by Keeler the same year (1897) when he collected 243 hits. Any major leaguer approaching 200 these days is all-star material.

Other club marks equally out of reach this year:

Most runs, 167, Joe Kelley (1894); most triples, 23, James Williams (1902); most stolen bases, 17, John McGraw (1894) and Willie Keeler (1897).

On the pitching end, it would take some tall hunting by any present-day pitcher to let alone members of the Orioles' doubtful list to top these marks:

Most complete games, 39, "Iron Man" Joe McGinnity (1901); most wins, 46, Matt Kilroy (1887); most strikeouts, 505, Matt Kilroy (1886).

Rosi of Italy Tops Tonight's Boxing Show

NEW YORK (P)—Paoli Rosi, a new face from Italy with five straight American victories, tops tonight's St. Nicholas Arena boxing show against Eddie Compo, seasoned New Haven Conn. Lightweight with 84 pro fights.

The 10-round bout, a rematch of a Madison Square Garden semifinal of last Dec. 18 will be given the usual Friday network radio and television treatment at 9 p.m. (CST).

Following the success of baldish Bobo Olson last week, the International Boxing Club presents another main event boxer with a shiny dome hair-do in Rosi. The 26-year-old import has a rep as a combination puncher with a solid right. He has stopped 21 men while winning 22 of 25 with one draw.

Rosi, handled by Charlie Johnston, beat Compo in the Garden semi-final on a split decision after a rousing battle. Compo was the only American to go the route with him. Knockout victims were Jimmy Wilde, Jose Morell, Sonny Luciano and "Daddy" Josephs.

Everybody knows Compo as a busy workman. He has been around since 1944 with a 72-8-4 record for 84 fights. Back in 1949, he fought Willie Pep for the featherweight championship at Watbury, Mass., and was knocked out.

Suzan Ball and Dick Long Will Be Married On Sunday

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood's nicest romance will be climaxed this Sunday at 4 p.m. when Suzan Ball and Richard Long are married at the El Montecito Presbyterian Church in Santa Barbara. The bride will be beautiful in a French lace gown over flesh-colored tulle. She'll be on crutches, because she didn't want to wait until she learns to use her new artificial leg. Suzan's right leg was amputated Jan. 12 after a year-long battle with cancer. Her comfort and support during the illness was Richard Long, an actor with a maturity beyond his 26 years. Suzan is 21.

Dick was acting in the Ma and Pa Kettle series and other films at Universal-International when he was drafted four years ago. The Army sent him to Japan, where he was attached to the Far East radio network. Like most GIs away from home, he went to the movies often. One night he saw "Yankee Buccaneer" and was impressed by a dark-haired beauty who appeared opposite Jeff Chandler. A year later, he was out of uniform and back at U-I to resume his acting career. One day he saw the dark beauty sitting in the commissary alone and he introduced himself. They met again at the same place the following day and talked for three hours. He offered to drive her home. Then he noticed that she was using crutches. In the car, he asked her: "By the way, what's wrong with your leg?"

"You might as well be the first to know," Suzan replied. "I've got cancer." A bump during a dance rehearsal had injured her knee. She ignored the pain, but the knee was hit again in an auto mishap during an appearance tour in Boston. She returned to Hollywood and managed to get through "War Arrow." But the pain was too great, and she underwent extensive tests. The doctors said she had a cancerous tumor and advised amputation.

"But I wasn't ready to throw in the towel," she recalls. "I knew I would always regret it if I overlooked one possibility of saving my leg. And if something new were found, perhaps my case could help others."

She found a doctor who believed her condition could be improved by treatment. She put herself under his care, and she seemed to be improving. Dick was her constant companion. "I had to leave town for a film location in Canada," he says. "As soon as I got on the train, I knew I was hooked. I couldn't live without her. When I got to Canada, I telephoned her and told her so. Luckily, she said she felt the same way."

Still on crutches—Long has never seen her walk—she flew to Canada to visit him. When the real thing came, they had a fight or two and called the whole thing off. But they always got back together.

One day he dropped in for lunch at her San Fernando Valley home. She remembers: "I noticed my dog Cezaire had spilled some water on the kitchen floor and I said to myself, 'I'll probably slip on that.'"

She did. Dick heard her scream and rushed to the kitchen to find her on the floor, her leg broken. Bone grafts failed to heal the break, and her condition worsened so that an amputation was necessary.

Her recovery was rapid, and the wedding was pushed forward to the Palm Sunday date. The Rev. Paul M. Gammons will give the vows before a small gathering, including the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman D. Long and Mr. and Mrs. H. Dale Ball. Matron of honor is Suzan's nurse, Mrs. Catherine Bidie. Best man is Dick's 19-year-old brother Robert.

After a brief honeymoon, Dick will return to his acting chores at U-I. Suzan will resume training with her new leg. She expects to continue her film career later this year.

Says the Miner From Saarbrücken: 'Next to Being a Citizen of Trieste, Toughest Job In Western Europe Is to be a Saarlander'

By Leon Dennen
NEA Staff Correspondent
SAARBRÜCKEN (AP)—Ernie Morgen, an ordinary "citizen" of the Saar, but it is "Next to being a citizen of Trieste the toughest job in Western Europe is to be a Saarlander."

Ernie, short, broad-shouldered and dark-haired, is a typical Saar coal miner—the son and grandson of miners. He is himself a symbol of the tiny state's split personality.

In the 40 years of his troubled existence Ernie Morgen's allegiance has been claimed in turn by Germany, France—then again by Germany and again by France.

The tragic dispute still rages, and is likely to continue much longer, for France has made settlement of the Saar issue one of the conditions for ratification of the European Defense Community.

"I no longer know what I am or where my soul belongs," Ernie said.

"And what would you like to be?" I asked.

"Probably an American."

"There was more than mere European courtesy in his reply. The Saar was liberated in the spring of 1945 by General Patton's tanks and—except for Luxembourg—is the only corner in post-war Europe that retains a genuinely warm feeling for Americans."

We were walking along the Bahnhofstrasse, main street of Saarbrücken, capital of the Saar. After Metz, the gloomy capital of French Lorraine which I left only 45 minutes earlier, Saarbrücken seemed like a fairyland.

Bahnhofstrasse glistened and twinkled with myriads of multi-colored neon lights. A huge sign ablaze with red, orange and radiant white announced unashamedly: "Think Coca-Cola." Another advertised "All About Eve—a great American film."

"The Saar is a civilized country," Ernie said pointing with pride to the neon lights. Neon came rather late to the Europeans and they still regard it as a mark of "civilization."

Even in the cold, wet drizzle Saarbrücken seemed prosperous. Stores and markets were piled high with French, German and American goods. Cafes and bistros were crowded with miners who came to town for their usual Saturday night's spree.

Though attired in their Sunday best they looked unmistakably like coal diggers. Except for their language it would have been difficult to tell them apart from the men who toil in mines of West Virginia or Illinois.

But while the end of the last war brought a measure of prosperity to the Saarlanders, they still have no peace.

The Saar is only a speck on Europe's geographic map. It covers 900 square miles—half the size of Long Island—with a population of less than a million. Why should this tiny oval patch of land bordering on France and Germany rate as one of the major trouble spots this side the Iron Curtain?

"Because," Ernie Morgen said, "the Saar, like the Ruhr, is the heart pumping life blood—coal and steel—to war-ravaged Europe."

Under the green hills of the Saar lies an immense bed that produces 18,000,000 tons of coal a year. Superimposed on it is an industry that produces almost 3,000,000 tons of steel a year.

The French say: "With West Germany in possession of the Ruhr, France needs the coal and steel of the Saar to survive. Before agreeing to a European Army"

Dulles Plans Flight To Europe to Talk With British, French

LONDON (AP)—Informed sources said today U. S. Secretary of State Dulles intends to fly to Europe next week for top level talks with French and British leaders on "united action" to safeguard southeast Asia from Communist domination.

There was no immediate confirmation from either American Embassy or Foreign Office officials.

These officials said that allied consultations on the American proposals for protecting Indochina and the rest of southeast Asia will take place shortly. But they refused to disclose where the discussions would take place or at what level.

Probe Crash That Killed 37 In Canada

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (AP)—Canadian officials pressed an investigation today into the nation's worst commercial aviation disaster, the collision-crash here yesterday of a Trans-Canada Airlines North Star and a light military training plane. Thirty-seven persons were killed.

Mayor L. E. Lewry called a special meeting of the City Council to renew protests against student flights from the nearby Royal Canadian Air Force base over this city of 25,000.

The dead included 31 passengers and a crew of four in the west-bound airliner; a British RAF pilot training here under a NATO program; and a cleaning woman who died in the wreckage of a house struck by the airliner's flaming debris. There were no survivors.

As it hurtled to the ground in flames, the big four-engine North Star came within 100 feet of a school where 350 children were in classes.

A garage was used as a temporary morgue. By early today only 18 of the 37 burned and broken bodies had been identified.

Among the dead passengers were Rodney Adamson, 52, a leading Progressive Conservative member of Parliament; Pat Reid, 38, famous northland bush pilot and company executive; George Sweny, president of the Vancouver Iron Works, and their wives.

The collision occurred in mid-morning as the airliner, delayed 7 1/2 hours by weather on its flight from Montreal to Vancouver, was flying west above the city.

Witnesses said the single-engine Harvard trainer crashed into the larger plane from the southwest, shearing off a wing from the airliner. The trainer fell directly to the ground while the North Star went into a spin at a sharp angle, trailing fire from its tail.

Bodies hurtled from the airliner "like raindrops," falling to the ground over a wide area, they said.

When the big plane hit, a fuel tank exploded and shot flames over two homes, burning them to the ground. The cleaning woman, Mrs. Martha Hadwen, 36, was the only occupant of one of them.

National Guard Chief Predicts Greater Use of the Guard

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The chief of the National Guard Bureau today predicted greater use of the Guard and other reserve units under the Defense Department's "new look" program.

"I can not discuss the 'new look' in detail," Maj. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson said in a prepared speech before the St. Louis Armed Forces Council, "but certain it is that the only feasible method of having sufficient military strength over an extended period of alarm and potential attack is to have a large, trained and well equipped reserve."

"That is why the National Guard, both ground and air, looms so large in all military planning. The alarm may come this year, or next, or it may never come. But we must have the men equipped, trained and ready."

Three new anti-aircraft battalions, with the job of defending Missouri's industries, are being organized, Gen. Erickson said.

He said one battalion with headquarters at Joplin already has enrolled 500 men, including the necessary trained specialists.

Bevan Says Britain Must Declare Intent To Avoid Indochina

LONDON (AP)—Aneurin Bevan, leader of the Labor party's left wing, declared in a newspaper article today Britain must tell the United States "in the clearest possible terms that we are not prepared to be dragged into military action in Indochina."

In the pro-Labor Daily Mirror, he wrote:

"The time will soon come, if indeed it hasn't already arrived, to inform America that the presence of American military personnel in these (British) islands is intolerable if our policies no longer match together."

The Independent Times and Liberal News Chronicle also expressed disquiet over Dulles' call for a Big Three warning to Red China against further intervention in Indochina.

Richard Dix' Son Gets Movie Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Tall, dark-haired Robert Dix, 18, who resembles his father, the late actor Richard Dix, has a movie contract at $75 a week.

It is for seven years and if MGM studios exercises all the options it would pay Dix $1,000 a week in its last year.

The contract was approved in Superior Court yesterday, as is required where juveniles are concerned. Dix was accompanied to court by his mother, Mrs. Walter

Monroe Begins New Picture, New Salary

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marilyn Monroe, who has signed a new contract with 20th Century-Fox, reports to work Monday on "There's No Business Like Show Business."

How much is her new salary? Her studio won't say, but a spokesman remarked: "You can be sure it's an attractive figure."

The studio suspended the blonde beauty Jan. 4 for failing to show up for the film, "Pink Tights." She said she didn't like the script. Ten days later she married Joe Di Maggio, former baseball star.

Miss Monroe, one of the movies' top boxoffice draws, made it no secret she was upset for drawing only $750 a week on her old contract. Other actresses on the lot were drawing weekly checks in the thousands.

Her new contract runs for seven years.

Suggests Gals Learn to Keep Baseball Score

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Girls who go to baseball games with their husbands or beaux should learn how to keep score if they want to be asked again, says Mel Allen, veteran sportscaster.

A man who is about to tear up his favorite hat in celebration of a score by his favorite team doesn't want to be interrupted by such questions as:

"Which side won, dear? Their suits are all the same color."

And he probably won't make another baseball date with the girl who sees that star hitter come up to bat a second time and says:

"Well, let's go, honey. This is where we came in."

Of course, such uninformed females are scarce, says the gallant Mr. Allen, who adds:

"Some of the best baseball fans are women nowadays. The girls started taking an interest in baseball when the first regular broadcast of games began, and they've been getting more hep ever since."

"Up to then, most women didn't understand baseball. But by listening to sportscasters many of them picked up a good working knowledge of the game, and now many can call the plays and razz the umpire as skillfully as the male fans."

"Television has helped even more. Now a woman can watch a game on TV and have the explanation of the commentator on each play. Soon she's an expert. And of course, the first thing she wants to do is go see a game in person."

Allen observes that at least 50 per cent of any ball park crowd is made up of women these days—from teen-agers to grandmothers.

"They can yell louder than the men in many cases—and often do," he says.

"Recently I got a fan letter and a present of some hand-knitted socks from an 80-year-old woman who claims she never misses a game."

Van De Kamp, the youth's twin brother, Richard Jr., was killed in a logging accident last September. Their father died of heart disease in September, 1949.

Rita, Dick Relax At Florida Hotel. Deny Meeting Aly

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Rita Hayworth and her husband Dick Haymes relaxed at a hotel in this resort city today amid reports that they came here to meet Prince Aly Khan.

The movie actress and her crooner husband arrived last night. They denied any knowledge of a reported meeting with the Moslem prince, to whom she was formerly married.

Newsman and photographers surrounded the couple on their arrival by motor car from Palm Beach.

"What is this all about?" asked Haymes, refusing to enter the hotel.

He was told about a report by columnist Earl Wilson of the New York Post that Aly Khan would fly here from Hollywood, Calif., for a conference with Rita to work out a settlement for their daughter Yasmin.

"This is the first thing I've heard about it," Haymes said. "I just came here to rest and fish. That's the only reason we are down here."

Haymes had chartered a fishing boat for today but later canceled the reservation and the hotel manager said they planned to "stay in."

Hints Foreign Aid Slash

Sen. Knowland Puts Britain, France On Notice US May Hold Up Appropriations

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Knowland put Britain and France on notice today that Congress might hold up foreign aid appropriations to spur them into acting on America's call for Allied unity against Asiatic communism.

Knowland spoke out shortly before the State Department announced that Secretary Dulles may fly to London and Paris for urgent consultations on the Indo-China crisis.

The California senator cited evidence that Britain and France were in no hurry to respond to Dulles' overtures for a 10-nation coalition to bolster the anti-Red fight in Southeast Asia.

If America's allies "want to take a new reading" based on what happens at the forthcoming Geneva conference with the Communists, Knowland told newsmen, then Congress might take a new reading of its own.

He put it this way:

"Since some of the nations with which we are associated have been suggesting they wait until after Geneva before deciding how to respond to Secretary Dulles' inquiries regarding their willingness to join in collective action should there be further aggression in Southeast Asia, I find growing sentiment in Congress that perhaps it should delay until after Geneva before determining its final policy regarding appropriations in support of those NATO countries—particularly those dragging their feet insofar as EDC is concerned."

This last apparently was aimed directly at France, which has put off time and time again taking any action on ratifying the six-nation European Defense Community.

Democratic Senators Fulbright of Arkansas and McCarran of Nevada questioned whether there could really be any congressional delay on foreign aid appropriations. They said there was no chance, under Congress' regular schedule, for action on foreign aid before the Geneva meeting opens April 26, or, for that matter, before next June.

Fulbright said he opposed any attempt to use foreign aid "as a bargaining weapon—you can justify foreign aid only on the basis of what's good for the country."

McCarran said he agrees with Fulbright in principle.

"I see what he's trying to do," McCarran said, "and I think he's right."

Britain and France have balked at Dulles' proposal for a joint Western defense agreement to ward off any further Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

British officials have decided to seek further talks in an effort to clarify what would be involved.

Air Force Committee To Begin Tour of Sites For Air Academy Today

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—An Air Force committee named to select a site for an Air Force Academy—sought by scores of cities throughout the nation—will begin its tour of possible sites tomorrow.

The five-man committee will make its first inspections in Florida.

Florida members of Congress said they were advised that the remainder of the group's itinerary will be determined after a visit to Orlando.

The committee is scheduled to leave Washington by plane tomorrow morning.

Congress is authorizing establishment of the Air Academy, directed that the Air Force secretary accept the committee's recommendation if it is unanimous. Otherwise, the secretary will make a selection from among the first three sites recommended by the group.

Waitress Is Stabbed Holding a Book Named 'A Kiss Before Dying'

NEW YORK, April 8 (AP)—A blonde, teen-aged waitress was stabbed to death in a darkened tenement hallway today, her and apparently foreshadowed in the title of a book she was holding, "A Kiss Before Dying."

Neighbors missed by seconds saving her life. They rushed to her rescue when they heard her cry.

"Oh, don't, don't!"

But death stifled her screams for mercy. Her killer slipped out the front door before help arrived and fled in the dead of night.

The girl, Marion Brown, a trim 17-year-old, was found sprawled on the back in the hallway for a six-story East 65th St. tenement. She lived with her mother on the top floor.

Beside her lay the paper-backed mystery thriller she had been carrying when the killing struck. Its title probably summed up almost exactly the manner in which she died.

Balk at Action to Stop Red Domination of IC

LONDON, April 8 (AP)—Britain and France balked tonight at immediate "united action" to head off Communist domination of Indo-China.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported ready to fly to Europe to urge action without delay.

A State Department spokesman said in Washington that the trip was being considered but that the decision had not been made.

Reports here were that Dulles would visit London and Paris next week for talks with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

The talks would precede the Geneva conference on Far East problems, chiefly Korea and Indo-China, scheduled for April 26. Dulles had previously planned to fly to Paris about April 22 for NATO talks, then go on to Geneva.

Official sources said the Churchill government has asked Washington to go slow on its program for a "hands off" warning to Red China and a new anti-Communist front of 10 nations in Southeast Asia.

The British have not turned down the proposals. They have simply asked for more time to talk them over.

Both the British and the French have expressed fear in diplomatic exchanges that hasty action now may hurt chances of reaching some agreement with Red China and Russia at the Geneva conference.

A request by both countries for further talks on the U. S. proposals was reported behind a Dulles suggestion that he fly to Europe next week for a conference on the critical Indo-China situation.

Both British and French officials said they would welcome a chance to discuss Indo-China with Dulles.

But British diplomatic sources warned that the United States must agree to high level consultations on the Dulles proposals before Britain or France give any positive replies.

The British have noted sympathetically the stand of the Laniel government that French public opinion will rebel at any strong-arm moves towards the Communists in advance of the Geneva conference.

The French people were determined to see the Geneva conference.

Fritz Scheff, Former Opera Star, Dies at 74

NEW YORK, April 8 (AP)—Fritz Scheff, the opera star for whom Victor Herbert wrote the immortal song "Kiss Me Again," died today. He was 74.

The Vienna-born actress and singer made her debut in Europe nearly 60 years ago.

She was a great Broadway star early in this century.

Miss Scheff dropped from the public eye for several years, singing in small night clubs and cabarets. But in 1950 she made a comeback at the old Palace Theater.

Her voice hoarse from laryngitis, she nevertheless captivated the Palace audiences.

Will Enter Art Festival-- Carol Clark Inherits Art Ability from Her Dad, Pat

Carol Vivyan Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Clark, 1001 South Massachusetts, can't help being an artist, she inherited it and absorbed it from her dad. Just where she got it is the question. There never seemed to be any talent for art in his family on either side, that he ever knew of, but there is certainly no question that he has it in abundance. So has Carol and so has the son in the family, Jack Hogan Clark, 12 Mrs. Clark alone thinks she has none, but her creative ability is in sewing.

Carol plans to enter some of her work in the Amateur Art Festival which will be held at the Sedalia Public Library April 16, 17 and 18, sponsored by Beta Tau Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi. Her dad might have a little something there, too, that is if he gets around to getting something painted for the festival.

Right now Carol is working. She is employed as a cartographic draftsman in Kansas City, making maps for the Army. It is a civil service job and it was her talent and the art training she had in high school that got her the job, and she likes it a lot. She plans to enter the Kansas City Art Institute a little later.

She was three years old when she went along with her dad one election day as he went to vote. The voting place was in an old garage and up in the corner of the garage sat a man. The tiny girl was thrilled over the owl, she just couldn't keep from looking at it and when he took her home that was the first thing Carol told her mother.

"It looked like this," she said, and she got a piece of paper and a pencil and drew the very good likeness of an owl, good enough that her mother knew what it was.

Carol has loved her growing up days because always there was sketching with her dad. They spent many evenings that way and always when the family would go on an outing or fishing trip they would take along their sketch pads and something to sketch with.

She still likes to sketch better than anything else, but she does do oil painting, water colors, or just any kind of art work. She really likes water colors better than oil, perhaps because she does it better. Most people find oil easier, but not Carol.

She has painted many things. A picture of a scene in oil, hangs in the new Calvary Baptist Church, which a family had her paint as a memorial to someone who had died.

Carol Clark
(Photo by Lehmer)

O'Day Shop was painted by Carol. Last year she won a gold key in the Emery Bird Art Contest in which there were 4,000 entries and only 150 golden keys given. She won awards in the contest there a couple of times before that. The fashion drawing with which she won the gold key also won second in the Art Festival here last year.

Screen painting has always been something she enjoyed, too, and she has made many attractive covers for programs as well as favors and other things. She has decorated lamp shades, made copies of antique shades for people and done many things that she delights in doing and that have brought pleasure to other people.

That sketching comes in handy with a mother who can sew, Carol finds. She thinks up something or sees some certain fashion she likes and sketches it on a piece of paper. Her mother takes over from there and makes it just like the picture.

She shows that she has her dad's talent when it comes to sign painting as well as others, or at least she has done posters.

Jack's flare for art differs from that of his sister and even his father, although there probably was a time when Pat did some similar type art. Jack does sketches of space cadet ships, streamlined cars - and something his daddy surely must have done, cartoons of the teachers.

And so the family of artists has always had a grand time together, and maybe it hasn't been a problem for the mother. Her part of the art work is cleaning up the house after the artists, and father does no better job of keeping things together than the youngsters. There are paint brushes, sketch pads and all manner of things scattered all over everything. But that is her job, her contribution to art and she doesn't mind in the least.

All Glory, Land And Honor Is Hymn Of Month for April

"The Hymn of the Month for April is 'All Glory Land and Honor,' text by St. Theophilus of Orleans, translated for us by J. M. Neal in 1854. The tune by Melchior Teschner.

The translator, the Rev. John Masson Neal, D. D., was born in London Jan. 24, 1818, and was graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge. He was a prolific writer and after taking holy orders he held office of warden of Saville College of East Grinstead, Sussex.

Best known of his works are medieval hymns and hymns for children. He died Aug. 6, 1890. There is no certainty as to the original tune of Theophilus hymn or how long it survived, but there are modern composers who have given it music in more or less keeping with its character.

After Forty-- Perfume Adds Youthful Air

By Alicia Hart
NEA Beauty Editor

Glamour is far from being the property of the young. In fact, someone has said that a woman who isn't glamorous when she's past 50 has never been glamorous at all.

The older woman preserves her glamour by keeping physically fit and by choosing her clothes and cosmetics with care. Her smart grooming and healthy good looks keep telltale birthdays well hidden.

But for giving herself the special lift of youth, she has found there is nothing quite so dependable as fragrance. She makes it her constant companion.

As for selecting the scent, age should not become the prime consideration. If a woman has always preferred the more exotic perfumes, she shouldn't feel compelled to forego them for a delicate floral fragrance.

Season, not birthdays, should influence her choice of fragrance. If she prefers the heavier perfumes, it's not advisable to wear them at this time of year.

As warmer weather comes upon us, the lighter, more delicate fragrances are in order. They complement both season and the clothes better than a heavy fragrance.

A point for you to remember about perfume is that what is delightful on your friend may not be on you. Skip chemistry is an important factor in selecting fragrance.

Consequently, you should never buy a perfume or cologne for the first time without trying it. Ask the saleswoman to put a few drops on the inside of your wrist to test it.

It's also wise to buy only a dainty-sized bottle of a new perfume so that you can try it for several days before making your investment in fragrant spirits.

Sedalia's C. of C. Program of Work Interests Others

A meeting of the membership committee of the Chamber of Commerce was held Friday noon at the Bothwell Hotel, at which time ways to increase the membership, in order to carry through a very good program of work that has been planned, were discussed.

Sedalia, the group learned, has been getting some recognition over the country for the accomplishments here through the Chamber of Commerce.

About two weeks ago, Col. J. A. Thomas, commander of the Jacksonville Air Base, in Arkansas, Kenneth Wilson, executive vice-president of the Jacksonville State Bank and president of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, and W. W. Keaton, mayor of Jacksonville, came to the Sedalia Air Force Base and then to Sedalia to learn some of the things to do in getting ready for the air base there.

The past week a group of men of the Chamber of Commerce membership committee from Columbia came here to meet with some of the Chamber of Commerce men in Sedalia to learn about the program of work here and discuss membership.

The men from Columbia were: Kenneth Puckett, who is president of the Commerce vice president; Francis Cannon, chairman of membership committee; H. R. Muller, Tom Alton, and Chuck Isley, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce. Meeting with them to talk about mutual problems were: Claude Boud, president; Jack Cunningham, past president; Kenneth Miller, membership director; Harry Nauget and Chester A. Brown, executive manager. The men from Columbia felt Sedalia had a good program of work and wanted to get ideas.

Letters have been received from two other towns from groups of citizens who want to come to Sedalia to talk over how Sedalia handles certain problems.

Poultrymen Can Buy Vaccine

Missouri poultrymen can now buy Infectious Bronchitis vaccine without securing a permit from the veterinary division of the Missouri State Department of Agriculture.

However, Dr. L. A. Rosner, the state veterinarian, is requesting producers not to use the Infectious Bronchitis vaccine unless there has been a history of previous infection on the premises or surrounding premises — preferably confirmed by laboratory diagnosis. On the other hand, Rosner says that where infection has occurred in a flock or on the adjoining premises, use of the vaccine appears warranted.

Even though a permit to purchase is no longer necessary, the state veterinarian's office is requesting the users of this vaccine furnish the State Department of Agriculture with information concerning its use and results obtained. Information forms will be furnished by the state veterinarian's office on request.

Rosner is also requiring manufacturers and distributors of the vaccine to make monthly reports covering the sale of all vaccine in the state of Missouri.

The occurrence of Infectious Bronchitis, although present in the state for many years, increased greatly in 1952 and 1953 and is of particular concern to producers of broilers and layers.

Stocking Length
The root of stocking should be long enough to extend possibly an inch beyond the longest toe for more comfort and better fit of shoes.

Ruby Faye Silsby Eleanor Van Dyke Charlotte Ann Houston

Things are really humming in the home economics department at Smith-Cotton High School these days. Perhaps you did not know, but there is to be another national "Make It Yourself from Wool" contest this year with the district elimination to be held in Sedalia, at the First Methodist Church, June 1.

That is the reason for that extra flurry of excitement at Smith-Cotton. The girls are studying the fashion plates to find just the most becoming pattern, making flying trips to the department stores to select wool fabrics (nothing but 100 per cent virgin wool may be entered), conferring with the sewing teachers about fitting problems and the many other details that come up in preparation of entries. There is one sure thing Smith-Cotton will be there when those eliminations are held.

Last year three girls from here made garments to enter and carried off honors at both district and state contests. They say it was worth the effort and most of all, there was fun in it.

Let us hear what the girls have to say about it.

Eleanor Van Dyke, who topped last year's district contest, says: "There is a thrill in winning a contest. When I entered the 'Make It Yourself from Wool' contest in 1953, I had no hopes of winning a state prize. Since I

Notes from Public Library-- New Mysteries, Detective Novels, Westerns Arrive

Just in time to see you through the first bout of spring fever, the Sedalia Public Library has received a number of new mystery and detective novels, westerns, romances and other fiction.

Popular writers of mysteries such as Agatha Christie, Milgrom Eberhart and Mabel Sealey are represented by their latest—'A Pocket Full of Rye,' 'Man Missing,' and 'The Whistling Shadow.'

Charlotte Armstrong, author of 'The Unsuspected,' has written a new suspense novel, 'The Better to Eat You,' and William Campbell Gault, who won the prize for the best mystery of 1952, has written a breezy, fast-paced story called 'Blood on the Boards.'

Readers who like Western stories will want to read Frank Gruber's newest, 'Bitter Seed,' about a gun man who vowed never to touch a gun again, but is forced into gunplay and trouble. In 'Hired Hand,' Nelson Nye creates unforgettable characters and a turbulent love story of the West. Besides having some forty odd Western novels by their credit, Nye is engaged in the breeding of Quarter Horses, concerning which he is considered one of the nation's outstanding authorities. Another Western writer, Brad Ward (S. A. Peeples) comes up with 'Trouble at Tall Pine,' a tale of cattle rustling and nesters.

In 'The Lights in the Sky Are Stars,' Fredric Brown is not concerned with astronomy as such. The year is 1997, and the 'Star-dusters' have already conquered Venus, Mars and the Moon — the next problem is to get Congress to make an appropriation for the conquest of Jupiter. Science-Fiction addicts will welcome this quality addition to S-P literature.

An adventure story of the sea is 'Swing Pull Circle,' by Lacey Wilson. More quietly paced but absorbing is Virginia Sortsen's new Mormon novel, 'Many Heavens.' In 'Around the Rugged Rock,' Elizabeth Cadell has written a gay-romantic novel in a glamorous Spanish setting.

The latest work of Clarence Budington Kelland is 'Dangerous Angel,' the story of a hard-boiled adventures and of a fabulous hoax that nearly wrecked the wildest boom in San Francisco's history. From the opposite end of the country comes 'Born a Yankee,' by Grace Carstens, about a name-proud family and a daughter who decides to join the 'outsiders.' Another in the long line of novels by Emilie Loring is 'My Dearest Love,' which combines youthful romance with suspense.

Lt. Beverly Rose Receives Silver Star for Gallantry

First Lieutenant Beverly J. Rose, Sedalia, has been awarded the silver star for gallantry in action.

Lt. Rose, a member of Battalion A, 8th Field Artillery Battalion, distinguished himself above and beyond the call of the duty in the vicinity of Sagon, Korea, during the period 3 to 4, July 1953.

On the evening of July 3, Lt. Rose was notified that an infantry patrol of the company to which he was assigned as forward observer had engaged the enemy. "His immediate and accurate supporting fire stopped the enemy at that time, but several men of the patrol were too seriously wounded to be moved. Without hesitation Lt. Rose set up a ring of artillery fire around the wounded men, which was directly responsible for saving them from death or capture during the night."

At first light, while a rescue patrol was being organized, enemy fire damaged Lt. Rose's observation post to such an extent his ability to further carry out his mission was impaired. Voluntarily Lt. Rose left the comparative shelter of his observation post and took up a position in the open, some 100 yards to the right, to better observe enemy actions and direct fire. While in the open, Lt. Rose was subject to direct enemy observation and received heavy enemy mortar and artillery fire, but fearlessly remained in his position and directed supporting fire so accurately that the enemy fire was suppressed.

"Later, at approximately 1600 hours on July 4, 1953, Lt. Rose repeated his act of valor and bravery by returning to the same exposed position and conducting covering fire for another patrol sent out to recover the dead. Due materially to Lt. Rose's utter disregard for his personal safety, all members of the patrol, with the exception of one taken prisoner, were returned to friendly lines."

Lt. Rose's gallantry on this occasion typifies the highest military traditions and reflects the utmost credit to himself, his organization and the United States Army.

The Silver Star was given under the command of Brigadier General Oakes, with Col. J. B. Sullivan, chief of staff.

Lt. Rose is the son of John A. Rose, 2200 East 12th, and a grandson of Mrs. D. A. Rose, 1400 East 14th.

A parade and party were held in honor of Lt. Rose.

Phone Bills Will Be Less With Tax Cut

Sedalia's Others Soon to Notice Lesser Amounts

Sedalia telephone users soon will be paying less on their telephone bills.

Every telephone customer will benefit directly by the bill just passed by Congress authorizing reduction in many federal excise taxes, according to R. L. Davidson, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company manager in Sedalia.

Effective April 1 the tax on long distance calls costing 25 cents or over has been cut from 25 per cent to 10 per cent, while the excise tax on long distance calls costing less than 25 cents and on local telephone service is reduced from 15 per cent to 10 per cent.

"Since the telephone company acts only in the capacity of a collecting agent for the excise tax, the savings in reduced rates is being passed directly to our customers," Davidson added. The telephone subscriber will be the one to benefit from the new law. To illustrate the savings that could be realized Davidson cited the example of the typical Sedalia business concern which makes an average of $50.00 worth of long distance calls each month under the present rate, the business pays a federal excise tax of $12.50 with the new tax, the firm will save $7.50 a month or $90.00 a year on long distance service alone. In addition the firm will pay about 5 per cent less for local service.

"The same rate of savings applies to the residence subscriber," Davidson said.

"The current high excise rate was imposed on telephone service as an 'emergency' measure at the height of World War II. Its original purpose was to help relieve overloaded telephone facilities by discouraging civilian telephone usage. After the war the telephone company was able to expand its facilities to serve its customers and the excise rate continued," Davidson explained.

The manager pointed out that considerable congressional effort was put forth in studying the excise tax problem before the new law was passed.

"The telephone company is very pleased with the results and the savings it will mean for our customers," he said.

Red Cross Reports Continue to Come In for '54 Drive

Reports from the 1954 Red Cross campaign for members and funds continue to come in with reports about half complete in the county.

The four ward chairman, Mrs. Robert Seelen, Mrs. John O'Brien, Mrs. Lee Robb and Mrs. K. U. Love, have made clean-up calls and reports are nearly complete in the city.

The North side workers, with Mrs. Fredonia Kingsbury and Mrs. Abbott as chairman and co-chairman, have almost reached their goal. Substantial gifts have been received from the American Legion Auxiliary, No. 98, North Side Citizens Association and Community Council. With a few reports outstanding, it is hoped the $35 needed to complete the quota will be reached, and workers, are being urged to complete their work as soon as possible.

Lake Creek Township, under the chairmanship of Charles Schwen, is the only section in the county to exceed its goal. Substantial gifts have been received from the county extension clubs and organizations throughout the county.

Everett Stevenson, county fund chairman, reports he hopes to have all reports from township workers in by April 10.

Crossroads Comment by G.H.S.

"Sea anemones, which exist at the greatest ocean depths, have been found six miles down," says a science writer. "These animals, which can walk on their heads, and survive without food for more than a year, are about the hardest creatures on the planet."

But, hasn't the writer overlooked Joe McCarthy? !!

The over-zealous swain who becomes overheated because his numerous passes are too frequently required should not become discouraged over his technique. Let him consider the plight of the woodpecker which drums on hollow limbs and gutters because it has no love call.

In Playhouse Play This Week-- Picking Up Accents, Manners Is Easy for Stella Kennedy

Picking up accents and mannerisms comes natural to Mrs. Stella Kennedy, who imitated people to such a degree, as she told of what someone had said, that her husband Douglas broke her of it after he married her because he was afraid people would think she was making fun.

She wasn't making fun of anybody, though. When she would start to tell something somebody said, she would just unconsciously take on their characteristics and assume their tones, pronunciations, accents, their manner of speaking.

Once she had been visiting in the home of relatives and she came back telling what this one happened to say and what that one said and at last, when amused members of her family had listened for awhile, one said to the other: "If you were in the next room and listening to this who would you think was in here talking?"

But Douglas had a feeling that this wasn't too good a habit. It was fascinating to listen to her that was true, but people might get the wrong impression.

Well, in the Community Playhouse, Mrs. Kennedy has plenty of opportunity to try out her ability. She can put herself in the place of the character she is supposed to be and just talk like the other person all she pleases. She likes character acting, she once got a prize in character reading by watching people and repeating what they said just as they had said it.

This time in "Night Must Fall," which will be presented by the Playhouse group April 6 and 7, she is Mrs. Tarrance, housekeeper for Mrs. Bramson. The only trouble with this part, thinks Mrs. Kennedy, is the English accent. An English accent is the most difficult thing for her to master because she keeps getting her Irish mixed up with it. She wasn't born in Ireland, but she is full-blooded Irish and the Irish just creeps in.

SAFB Baseball Players Shaping Up to Play MU

The Sedalia Air Force Baseball team is shaping up, M/Sgt. Holahan has announced. The team also has scheduled two games with the University of Missouri Tigers.

The SAFB will play MU at Columbia on April 19 and 20 in accordance with a schedule arrangement made with Don Faurot.

A change in the schedule of the SAFB team has become necessary as they were scheduled to meet Central College on the 19th. Another date is being arranged.

The first squad of 90 ball players was trimmed down, only to meet, another squad with a number of other players reporting in at the base since baseball was started. However, Holahan reports he anticipates a strong club this season.

Only players who have had previous semi-pro, college or previous service baseball will be accepted for tryouts from now on.

Independent ball clubs desiring to schedule games with the base team are requested to have their managers contact M/Sgt. Holahan at the SAFB by calling 6100 and asking for Extension 260.

Mrs. Douglas Kennedy

difficult thing for her to master because she keeps getting her Irish mixed up with it. She wasn't born in Ireland, but she is full-blooded Irish and the Irish just creeps in.

She was Dora, the colored maid in "Dear Ruth," the housekeeper in "Angel Street," the colored maid in "Very Untrue Yours," and the part she liked best, Mrs. Brown, mother of Claudia in "Claudia."

As Mrs. Tarrance, in "Night Must Fall," the haughty middle-aged housekeeper, afraid of nobody and ready to talk back at any time to any of them, she hopes she can succeed in keeping the Irish out of her English accent, but the others in the cast are not worried. She will do the part of Mrs. Tarrance well, as she has always done all other parts. And they are all very sure of that.

3 Persons Slightly Hurt as Car Goes Over Creek Bank

Three persons narrowly escaped being seriously injured about 11 miles riding in a car over the Muddy creek embankment seven miles north of Sedalia on Highway 65. Lights on the car failed, according to Clarence Brown, 29, Marshall, the owner-driver, and he missed the curve while driving toward Sedalia.

In the car with Brown were Miss Grace Sullens, 36, Marshall, suffered an abrasion on the left leg and confusion of the right hand, and Kenneth Cross, 25, Marshall, who escaped injury other than a few minor bruises.

Brown suffered a possible fracture of the right hip, confusion of the right hip, bruises and shock.

Brown said as the lights went out he applied the brakes on the car, and then felt it begin to roll down the embankment. The car rolled nearly 30 feet down the embankment before two small trees stopped it from going almost the same distance on down and into Muddy Creek.

The car was badly wrecked.

A. B. Gilmore, Hughesville, who was driving by noticed the three persons scrambling over the brink of the embankment and stopped. He picked them up and took them to the Bothwell Hospital in his car. He was enroute to the hospital to take Mrs. Gilmore.

Xi Omega, BSP, Sponsors Dance For Cancer Fund

Money for research, education and service to combat cancer is needed to carry on the program to save lives from this disease, and for this cause a Western Style Square Dance is being sponsored by the Xi Omega Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, April 9.

The dance will be held at Whittier School at 8 p. m. for the Pettis County Cancer Society and Charles Patterson, president of the Sedalia Square Dance Callers Club, has arranged for the services of the following as callers: Ray McCrory, Floyd Priddy, Damon Hieronymus, Herb Winebrenner, Ray Miller, Cline Cain and Glenn King.

Damon Hieronymus will have a group of his exhibitionists on hand for additional entertainment.

Mrs. John Fisher is president of Xi Omega and Miss Genevieve Sullivan is chairman of the benefit.

There will be no campaign for funds in the city this year for the Cancer Society, since it was included in the United Fund Drive last fall. But there is money needed to carry on the saved lives from cancer, the number - two killer that strikes all ages.

With the present known techniques of early diagnosis and treatment of cancer, one out of every four is saved, but two out of every four can be saved if they can be treated early by the most effective methods. Fear and delay cause cancer deaths.

'Good Will' Luncheon Ends In Walkout

WASHINGTON, April 8—(P)—An elaborate "good will" luncheon thrown by the U. S. government for foreign diplomats today wound up in a wrathful walkout by Arab guests and a flurry of apologies for the remarks of an American Jewish speaker.

Four Arab state diplomats and an unidentified Arab friend left in high dudgeon, some of them banging their chairs to the floor, after Dr. Norman Salit of New York assailed Arab tactics and referred to Israel as "the only democracy in the Near East."

Salit, president of the Synagogue Council of America, later sent a written apology to Secretary of State Sumner Welles, co-sponsors of the luncheon, and asked that it be passed along to the offended Arabs.

Sumnerfield himself told the embassies of Iraq, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Egypt that Salit's remarks were "a source of deep personal regret" to him.

The luncheon, in the grand ballroom of the fashionable Shoreham Hotel, was held to publicize the new eight cent "Liberty" stamp for overseas mail, a red-white-and-blue issue designed to advertise the American way of life throughout the world.

Most of Washington's diplomatic corps attended. So did Dulles and Vice President Nixon, among other American officials. It was quite a production, with gift stamp albums for some of the eminent guests and a New York advertising firm helping with the publicity.

The air of good feeling suddenly chilled when Salit stopped talking about the ideals of brotherhood and touched with concealed bitterness on the Arab-Israel dispute.

Out of the ballroom in a body strode three ambassadors—Syria's Farid Zeineddine, Saudi Arabia's Asad Al Faqih and Iraq's Shabandar; Egyptian Charge d'Affaires Fahmy; and a fifth man believed at the time to be from the Lebanese Embassy.

That embassy said later it had no official representative at the luncheon, but hastened to add: "If we had been there, we would certainly have joined the walkout."

The legal battle to keep her here was climaxed with favorable action in Congress on a resolution granting her special permission to stay.

The Eight Cent 'Liberty' Stamp Is Introduced

WASHINGTON, April 8 (P)—The first U. S. postage stamp to bear the motto "In God We Trust" appeared today—and President Eisenhower hailed it as a symbol of a spiritual quality underlying America's strength.

The President, Vice President Nixon, Cabinet members and leaders of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths took part in a televised ceremony introducing the eight cent stamp.

Known as the "Liberty" stamp, it depicts the Statue of Liberty and is printed in red, white and blue. It is intended chiefly for use in overseas mail, and Eisenhower said by using it every American can send a message of hope and faith anywhere in the world.

"The size and greatness and influence of America have come to be an accepted fact in the world," the President said. "In trying to describe our characteristics, the expression is sometimes concerned with material things—in the gadgets used in our homes."

"But we were great before these things were invented."

"America's greatest has been based on a spiritual quality best symbolized by this stamp. The flame of Liberty symbolizes our determination always to remain a haven for the oppressed. It is an acknowledgment that all men are dependent on the Almighty."

Churchill Says Britain Will Exercise Policy In 'H-Bomb' Policies

LONDON, April 8 (P)—Prime Minister Churchill maintained today Britain now would exercise a voice in hydrogen bomb policies if his 1943 Quebec agreement with President Roosevelt had remained alive.

"I certainly consider that the hydrogen bomb was, in a certain sense, the child and successor of the atom bomb," Churchill told the House of Commons.

His statement was given in answer to Laborite questions.

It ran counter to an official White House view that the Quebec understanding—based as it was on the atom bomb—would not have applied to the H-bomb in any event.

Under the Quebec agreement, the United States and Britain agreed never to use the A-bomb against each other or against any other country without both U. S. and British consent.

NEW CASTLE, Del., April 8 (P)—A small private airplane crashed into the Delaware River today killing two men and narrowly missing an army dredge. The plane sank in 40 feet of water less than 100 yards from an army engineers' dredge. A launch from the dredge recovered the bodies.

The dead were identified as Curtis Plotts, 25, of Springfield, Pa., and Air Force 1st Lieut. Eugene C. Bascom, 35, of 4301 E. Haskell, Tulsa, Okla.

The House of Commons Coroner C. Everett Kelly, who made the first identification from cards in the clothing of the two men, said Plotts' mother verified her son was on the flight and that Bascom had been visiting her daughter while en route back to Thule Air Force Base in Greenland following a furlough in Oklahoma.

They were arrested following several complaints of residents in the neighborhood of 11th and Thompson.

Fire Chief Walter H. Kamman, who made the damage estimate, said the plane apparently was touched off by an electric spark in a paint agitator tank.

The building was occupied by the Mar-Kay Manufacturing Co. and the Robbins Varnish Co.

Admiral Arman, a foreman for Mar-Kay, said that Joseph Riefing, an employee, ran through the building shortly after 1 p. m. shouting "Fire."

Flames were leaping from a paint-mixer Riefing had been operating. He suffered burns of the face.

Four alarms were sounded, sending 29 pieces of fire equipment to the scene. Other industries in the area were asked to turn on their sprinklers to avoid danger from wind-blown embers.

The statement was attributed to Dr. Tsunesaburo Asada, professor of science at Osaka University.

Dr. Asada is known in the United States as a physicist who does not speak English. His specialty is the spectroscopy.

US, Canada Set Up New Radar Warning Fence

WASHINGTON, April 8 (P)—The United States and Canada are setting up a new radar warning fence along the tundra and ice of the Arctic perimeter in an effort to give the big cities to the south at least a six-hour notice of approaching enemy warplanes.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said today that preliminary work on the project is "well advanced." In a statement, similar to one issued simultaneously in Ottawa, the American defense chief also said that warning nets for the flanks stretching out over the oceans to either side of North America are being augmented.

The new, northernmost chain of radar sets to detect enemy planes and guide friendly planes to interception of an enemy force, is part of an intensified effort to tighten the guard against hydrogen or atomic attack across the North Pole.

Along with the strengthening of the interceptor plane—radar warning system against any sudden attack by Russian bombers there are efforts to increase the guard against covert attacks by atomic saboteurs.

Implementing a letter sent by the FBI to all local police organizations a few weeks ago, the Navy has distributed among its own personnel tactical information to help them detect the "suitcases saboteur."
